Increase In Bootlegging Seen Likely

Wide-Scale Operations Haven't Started Yet, However, Police Say.

Ohio's liquor dilemma has not resulted in any appreciable in- crease in bootlegging here, Police Chief Meade K. Bates declared today. It is freely conceded by police that small-scale operations always have and always will prevail in the "Flats" where a well developed "grapevine" and "lookout" organization thwarts any attempt at official interference.

"If the present 'famine' con- tinues," Chief Bates said, "there is a probability of bootlegging being attempted in homes, maybe with the sale of home-made whisky. However, it appears that the worst danger lies in the im- portation of whiskies purchased in neighboring states, with a re- sale constitution a violation in that it would be an illegal trans- action with a legal product."

Chief Bates said no reports have been received of saloons importing stocks from other states. "License holders can't afford to take such a chance. Wholesale transactions in adjoining states are supposed to be certified to Ohio's liquor board which can thus control the supply to the individual tavern keeper and keep a check on any contra- band."

Frank C. Poling, manager of the South Park street retail liquor store of the state chain, is facing a mounting problem in the "ration- ing" of limited whisky stocks at unannounced hours in order to accommodate the greatest number of different buyers. Only a few brands were available to long lines which brasted freezing tempera- tures yesterday awaiting a chance to buy a bottle and this condition will continue indefinitely under the state's lack of system in ob- taining adequate stocks, observers say.

William Thull, manager of the North Main street wholesale-grocery store, has been and is confronted by the same problems which, he says, would baffle a Solomon.

Trawler Too Tough, Italian Sub Gives Up

Confident of her superior fire power, the Italian submarine Eme surfaced off the North Atlantic coast for combat with the British trawler Lord Nuffield. A couple of accurate shots from the trawler's guns, however, crippled the enemy undersea craft. The Italian crew members are shown, top, lining up on the deck and starting to jump into the water to swim, lower photo, to the trawler, where they gave themselves up.

WLB Refuses to Be Prodded In Study of Boeing Aircraft Wages.

WORK STOPPAGE HIT

Unions Plan to Paralyze All Plane Production Quashed By District Council.

(By United Press) WASHINGTON — Congressional pressure for anti-strike legislation mounted today as the War Labor Board continued consideration of the wage increase demands by west coast aircraft workers.

Board members rebuked Boeing Aircraft company employees for what amounted to a virtual work stoppage threat and declared the WLB would not be high-pressured into an immediate decision in the wage controversy.

With some congressional tempers rising rapidly over the Boeing situation, WLB mem- bers said they probably would not reach a decision until some time next week. By that time, it appeared, at least one anti- strike measure will have been introduced in congress.

Eight major aircraft companies in southern California are affected by the case at issue in addition to Boeing. The WLB has had the case under consideration since last summer.

The board was committed to a policy of deliberating for as long as it deems necessary by WLB Chairman William H. Davis, who last night warned the Boeing em- ployees that the WLB does not "proceed with its consideration of any case unless the workers in- volved remain loyal to their jobs until the case is finally de- termined."

MEAT CEILINGS

Dollar and Cents Prices to Be Fixed Next Tuesday.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Specific dollar and cent ceiling prices on retail meat will be clamped down next Tuesday, it was disclosed to- day by department of agriculture sources.

This action will be taken to equalize prices in order that the meat rationing program can go into effect, and to curb black market operations, it was said. At the same time, meat will be rushed to shortage areas on the east and west coast to relieve the critical situations there.

RISING: Toll of Jap Ships At 20 In Four Days' Bombing

(By International News Service) UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUS- TRALIA — Four more Japanese vessels, including a 5,000-ton cargo ship, were blasted in the course of widespread bomb- ing raids Friday on enemy bases in the New Guinea area, an official communique reported today. In four days of continuous raids on Japanese islands outposts, 20 enemy ships have been de- stroyed or damaged by bombers, under the command of Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

RAF Stages Second Heaviest Raid Of War on Key To Rhineland.

(By United Press) LONDON — British four- engined bombers last night rocked Cologne, huge German industrial center, in a block- buster assault second in scale only to last summer's 1,000- plane raid.

Described officially as "very heavy," the raid carried the most concentrated Anglo-American aerial offensive of the war past the 24-hour mark.

Only 10 bombers were lost, con- sidered a remarkably small pay- ment for such a heavy attack. The announcement that the raid was the second heaviest of the war on Cologne indicated that at least 500 planes participated.

An air ministry communique said "good results" were observed. British bombers also attacking objectives in western Germany during the night while fighters and fighter-bombers attacked rail- way targets in northern France, the communique said.

But the main weight of bombs was concentrated on Cologne.

Two and four-ton block bust- ers and thousands of incendiaries were unloaded on the key Ger- man industrial city, site of nu- merous factories turning out parts for U-boats.

The weather over the city was clear apart from ground haze and pilots reported only moderate anti- aircraft fire despite the impor- tance of their targets.

The heaviest weight of bombs were reported concentrated on the Diesel engine works and au- tomobile factories.

The giant four-engined Lancas- ter, Stirling and Halifax bom- bers struck in the wake of Ameri- can Flying Fortresses that pound- ed the Wilhelmshaven naval base. (Continued on Page 10, Col. 4)

LUCKY: Yank Pilots 'Shaved' By Flak In Wilhelmshaven Raid

UNITED STATES BOMBER STATION SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND — (AP) — Lady Luck was an unlisted passen- ger on the U. S. Eighth Air Force's second Fortress-Libera- tor assault on Wilhelmshaven yesterday. It was an expedi- tion of close shaves.

The Fortress "Southern Comfort," which has missed nine of 15 raids because she was shot up so badly on the other seven, got back almost on schedule this time al- though a four-foot square was clipped right out of the main ruder by shrapnel.

"That old North Sea looked wil- der than the Atlantic," Pilot Lieut. Hugh Ashcroft said. "I don't know how we made it. The fact we prayed might have had something to do with it. We were walking on a thin line for a while. I'm becom- ing a firm believer in the saying, 'God bless Boeing.'"

"Southern Comfort's" wings were peppered with nasty, jagged holes and there was a hole a foot long in the cowling of No. 3 en- gine. When she came in oil was streaming off her like water off a damp spaniel.

A deadly 20 millimeter shell ripped into the nose compart- ment, clipped the navigator, Lieut. James Mobley of Mob- ility, Mo., right on his steel hel- met and knocked his head down so hard his helmet split the desk.

The tailgunner, Frank Hilsa- beck of McCook, Neb., had another shell rip into one side tail, pass a few inches from his back and tear out the other side.

IN THE CAPITAL--

WASHINGTON—The big enemy remains the submarine. Secretary Knox says sinkings have been reduced during the last three months. But don't read much significance into that. Bad weather may explain the drop. That's what Secretary Knox thinks. He finds nothing on which to base hopes for early stopping of the submarine menace. Sinkings are obscured so that the public does not have a clear picture of the damage they do to our war effort. Lend-lease officials give the impression in their public statements that the submarine menace is as far as supplies for Russia are concerned. Statements about the absence of sinkings may mislead people into thinking the danger is past. But the danger is far from over. Precious space is obtained for a shipment of some given commodity. Much depends on its prompt arrival. It is sunk on the way. Then comes another struggle to find space for a replacement shipment. Time lost may be as precious as the material lost. That is why there is the saying that a ship saved from the submarine is worth two that may be built to replace it. Time, crews, the cargo, and the bottom itself are all involved. Literally thousands of suggestions have been made for dealing with submarines. But no magic panacea has been found and amateur assistance at this late date is not likely to produce the answer. In fact there may be no answer at all.

The submarine is the one weapon that we are unable to engage in combat on its own level. The enemy airplane is attacked by our airplanes. The enemy surface naval ship is attacked by our naval ships. But the submarine comes up in one of our convoys, fires its torpedoes and dives to escape.

FAIR ENOUGH--

NEW YORK—The Nazis of late have revived their early propaganda to the effect that they stand between the free peoples and communism. By some this has been interpreted as a sign of weakness and fear and the Communists themselves in this country are denouncing it as an attempt to divide the United Nations, as it certainly is. But better for American purposes, than any attempt to distinguish between nazism and communism which are equally brutal, treacherous and fatal to freedom, would be a sort of refresher course on the perfidies of the Hitler state, some of the details of which may have faded from mind in the confusion and shocks of the war. Hitler organized a conspiracy against the hospitality, trust and safety of other nations, no less evil but no more so, than the Communist party. Germans living abroad were held to be Germans nevertheless, even though they had acquired citizenship and the rights and privileges thereof in their adopted countries. They were brought back to Germany for reunions and indoctrination and, impressed with the brutal muscularity of Hitler's Brown Shirts, and then of his troops, they went forth again, regarding themselves as a chosen people whose honor was above the requirements of honor as civilized people understood it. Every low and evil trick and trait which Hitler's propaganda attributed to the Jews, as inherent in that which he called their racial Jewishness, was practiced as the national program of the master race.

The Nazis whined for sympathy, they disarmed their selected victims with gestures of hearty friendship, they borrowed with no intention to pay, they pinched off and stole properties and earnings of foreign investors, they bribed traitors in Austria, Czechoslovakia and Norway to betray their countries and in the end, convinced that they were now ready to master the world by war, they marched against small and helpless nations in sudden assaults in which the bravery was all on the side of the victims. Schuschnigg of Austria was invited to a parley and seized, and God only knows what Hitler did with him. In a matter of hours the Nazis swept into a defenseless country and took it as the saying went, by phone.

ON BROADWAY--

By Dorothy Kilgallen

Celluloid Is Made From Newsprint. Joe Moxiefan the fellow who stands in line at the Music Hall reads Louella Parsons every day, and knows the dimensions of Veronica Lake, isn't always hep to how movies get their plots. Joe, most of the time, has the idea that all producer does is wait until some show checks on Broadway or somebody hangs out a best picture, then he signs a check for a million bob or a couple of million, and transfers it to the screen. The truth is that no reason ever had a dozen smash plays in books and even if there were that many the film industry would still have to whip up some 250 additional scripts during the year. Which is just what it does. And the biggest number of these are "idea" motion pictures taken from headlines on newspapers, or even an unusual advertisement in the personal or luncheon conversation.

Here is the "backstage" story of some of the pictures Joe Moxiefan has seen recently, or will see soon. Just about a year ago at this time Jack Warner had a few guests at his home for dinner and one of them remarked that the only great pictures of the last war had been made after the war was over. Examples being "Wings" and "Hell's Angels" and "What Price Glory" and "The Big Parade." "The time," said Warner, "will tell the story. It will be still new." For instance there's a story for us in what our flies are doing in the Pacific.

OHIO TO TEST AIR WARNINGS IN 29 COUNTIES

Homes, Business and Streets To Be Blacked Out In North and East Areas.

COLUMBUS — (AP)— Ohio will test its new air raid warning system in a blackout of 29 northern and eastern counties next Thursday night, Executive Director Ralph H. Stone of the state defense council announced today. Details of the "lake shore-Ohio river valley test," affecting an area inhabited by some 3,500,000 persons, have been perfected for the following counties: Ashtabula, Athens, Belmont, Columbiana, Cuyahoga, Defiance, Erie, Gallia, Geauga, Mahoning, Huron, Jackson, Jefferson, Lake, Lawrence, Lorain, Lucas, Medina, Meigs, Monroe, Ottawa, Portage, Sandusky, Scioto, Seneca, Summit, Trumbull, Washington and Wood. Industrial plants, except those in Cuyahoga county, will not be required to blackout but will be tested on a county-by-county basis in the near future, Stone reported. Cities in the test area have been asked to issue air raid warnings on central war time to conform with the time recently established for the state by the general assembly. The schedule: Test warning No. 1—Time 8:05 p. m. This signal will be given to key members of the local defense corps.

Test warning No. 2 — Time 8:25 p. m.

This warning will be a long steady blast on an air raid siren or whistle for two minutes. Civilian defense corps will mobilize. Homes, business houses and street lights will be blacked out. The signal ordinarily means planes are approaching. No. 3—Time 8:40 p. m. This warning that planes are overhead will consist of a series of short blasts on horns or whistles, or the wailing of sirens. All remaining lights must be blocked out. Traffic will be halted. No. 4 — Time 8:50 p. m. This warning that planes no longer are overhead cautions civilians to be on the alert inasmuch as they may return. It will be a long, steady blast on sirens, whistles or horns. Homes, business places and street lights remain blacked out. Pedestrians may proceed with caution. Traffic may move at reduced speed with lights on low beam. No. 5—Time 8:55 p. m. The "all-clear" signal will be long blasts from police or warden's whistles, possibly by radio, or by the switching on of street lights.

5 COLLISIONS

City Continues to Get Calls on Slippery Streets.

Calls for aid and salt to be spread on icy spots impeding or imperiling traffic continued to be received by the street department today although Superintendent Charles Hebel reported virtually all hazards had been eliminated by street crews yesterday afternoon and last night. No one was reported injured in five accidents recorded by city police and the state highway patrol, most of them being collisions caused by a hard-packing snowfall which accompanied lowering temperatures yesterday. Newell Smith, Mansfield R. D. 4, truck driver for the state highway department, reported slight damage to his truck which collided with the auto of Harry F. Smith, 393 Newman street, at Fifth and Elm streets, late yesterday. Other collisions were reported between auto of Joseph Stehle, Mansfield R. D. 3, and W. G. Weingartner, 523 Metropolitan street, C. K. Nickols, 228 Lexington avenue, whose parked auto was struck by a hislop driver; Don Peters, 22 Chestnut street, and F. S. Kelly, 100 Vennum avenue, and Councilman George C. Kyle, 63 Penn avenue, and Frank C. Davon, Lakewood. Harold Shaffer and Mrs. Maude Adde-perser of Mansfield have been informed of the death of their sister, Mrs. Ethel Shaffer Krumrine, 49, in York, Pa., where she was stricken with a heart attack. Mrs. Krumrine, a native of Johnsville, is survived by her husband Clayton E. Krumrine, and four children, in addition to five sisters and two brothers.

FIVE PERISH AS DWELLING BURNS

Children Die While Mother Works In War Plant; Father Injured.

(By Associated Press) NEW LEBANON — A quick-spreading fire killed five persons, four young children of a New Lebanon family and a 20-year-old girl roomer who was caring for the youngsters, while the mother worked in a Dayton war plant late last night. Flames roared through the two-story frame dwelling so rapidly that only the father, aroused by the cries of the children, escaped. The dead were identified as: Betty Joan Heindl, 7, Janet Louise Heindl, 9, Phyllis Jean Heindl, 11, Bobby Heindl, 5, and Naomi Clifford, 20, formerly of Frenchburg, Ky.

John Heindl told Montgomery county sheriff Phil Coon's office that he was awakened by cries that his children smelled smoke. He jumped out of bed, dashed downstairs and found the house ablaze. Trying to return upstairs, Heindl said the flames blocked his path. The blaze, firemen said, apparently was caused by the explosion of a coal oil stove. Heindl suffered head, face and hand burns, but his condition was not regarded as serious. An older son of the Heindls was not home when the fire occurred.

Laff-a-Day

Up and Down STREET

Police Traffic Commissioner Fred C. Boals today was advised by City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner that he soon will complete the incorporation of penalty clauses in a proposed new traffic code drafted by Commissioner Boals. An ordinance embracing the code will be presented to council, likely at its April session, and it is expected that a prolonged study will be made before the new control legislation is adopted. Boals hopes to have his program in effect for summer driving control. "With the number of autos in use greatly reduced by rationing, and with a victory speed of 35 miles an hour in force, the war period will be an ideal time in which to instruct the public," Boals said today.

It seems there was a certain Mansfield banker who misinterpreted the rules concerning rationing. When he discovered his family had more than five cans per person limit of canned foods and an extra couple of pounds of coffee, he took said surplus right along with him when he went to school yesterday to sign up for the new books. He came away a wiser man, happy to be permitted to keep his prized groceries even if his book was minus a few points. The lucky thing, as he sees it now, was that he was able to avoid "hi-jackers" along the way.

PARROTT CASE GOES TO JURY

Prosecution and Defense Rest Hearing Evidence on Three Counts Against Author.

MIAMI, Fla. —(AP)— The case of author Ursula Parrott, who faces a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $10,000 fine for smuggling Pvt. Michael Neely Bryan out of the guardhouse, goes to a federal jury today. Prosecution and defense rested evidence yesterday. Government and defense attorneys make their summations this morning, and then the jury of middle-aged men begins its deliberation. Miss Parrott, 40, in the process of divorcing her fourth husband, was tried on three counts: helping Bryan to escape from a Miami Beach military stockade on Dec. 28 by hiding him in the back seat of her automobile; harboring him, and undermining the loyalty, discipline and morale of a member of the armed forces. Neither she nor Bryan, 26, a former guitar player in "Benny Goodman's band, testified. Bryan said to testify might incriminate him. Bryan and four other persons face a charge in New York of conspiring to operate a "reformer parlor" for service men. He already has been court-martialed and sentenced to military prison for one year for his night out with Miss Parrott.

LAKE VICTIM?

Lakeville Man Believed to Have Broken Through Ice.

MILLERSBURG — Virgil Rush, 49, Lakeville, missing since last Saturday night, is believed to have broken through the ice on Lake O'Dell at Lakeville and drowned. Sheriff Harry R. Weiss of Holmes county said today. The sheriff said the lake would be dragged in an attempt to locate the body as soon as the water is sufficiently free from ice to permit operations. Rush, who lived with his mother at Lakeville, frequently walked across the ice in a short-cut to the village, the sheriff said. Rush was last seen at 8 p. m. last Saturday by a Lakeville resident who said he started across the ice to his home.

LONDON —(AP)— A DNB dispatch broadcast by the Berlin radio said today the Germans had ordered a total labor mobilization in two more Axis-occupied countries, Greece and Yugoslavia, and the decree to the Czechs was accompanied by a threat of extermination if Germany lost the war. "Stalin could only enter Germany over the bodies of every single German — and over the bodies of every last Czech," a labor conscription announcement to the Czechs was quoted. As in Norway and The Netherlands, all men and women between the ages of 17 and 45 are affected.

NO COMPROMISE ON PLANS, SAY FARM SENATORS

Gather Strength Behind Their Demands For Higher Prices And More Labor.

(By International News Service) WASHINGTON—The House Farm Bloc served strong notice today that there can be "no compromise" on its demands for higher prices, more labor and machinery to accomplish the titanic war food production job. The farm state members in both houses of congress gathered strength from developments striking directly at the administration's economic control program, a special bi-partisan house committee met to outline "what we want for the farmers and how we intend to get it." That statement of the objectives was made by Rep. Lemke, (R) Lemke (R) N. D., chairman of the seven-man committee organized on Wednesday—the same day Secretary of Agriculture Wickard asked congress for a "clear mandate" on farm policy. "There is no room for compromise," Lemke said. "Farmers must have the labor, the machinery and the income to produce the food for this war. I'm afraid the bureaucrats are hopelessly entangled and that we'll get nowhere unless congress shows the way."

Lemke said the committee was considering carrying its case to the White House and definitely would call in department heads to "find out who's the bottleneck."

Resentment of administration treatment of the farm problem, said Rep. Crawford (R) Mich., was reflected clearly in the action of the house banking committee yesterday approving two measures counter to present government policy. "That was just an explosion that has been long in coming," the Michigan member of the banking committee said in explanation of the legislation. One bill, that of Rep. Stearns (D) Ala. prohibits deduction of subsidy, parity and conservation payments in fixing "crop cooling" prices—similar to the bankhead bill approved by the senate Thursday. The other measure, by Rep. Brown (D) Ga., writes farm labor costs into the parity formula.

Chinese Drive Japs Back Along Yangtze

NEW YORK—(UN)—A Chinese
counter-attack has driven Japa-

Predict New Giraud, DeGaulle Negotiation

ALGIERS —(AP)—

Informed political sources predicted today the stagnated negotiations between Gen. Charles De Gaulle, head of the French national committee in London, and Gen. Henri Honoré Giraud, high commissioner of French Africa, soon would be broken with the likelihood of complete amalgamation of the two forces. That's far beyond the original expectations.

These sources also went so far as to predict Generals Giraud and De Gaulle might become military chiefs of the combined French forces, while a third political figure, not yet on the scene, will take over the political duties.

It is understood the original De Gaulle-Giraud plan for military and economic "liaison" is not satisfactory to the American and British governments, who believe the French must present a united front for the day when the Allies invade France.

seizure of any plant where production of war materials is delayed by any labor disturbance or other cause.

Sen. William Langer, R., N. D., blamed the WLB for the Boeing situation, asserting that the workers had waited two months for a decision on their wage request. He said that "a strike is often the only remedy a working man has to get enough to eat and wear."

Davis' warning was telegraphed to Industrial Lodge 751 of the International Association of Machinists (IAM), which held up the production of Flying Fortresses for three hours Thursday at Boeing's Seattle and Renton, Wash., plants to protest the WLB's delay.

The union at the same time adopted a resolution which it relayed to the WLB, declaring that the workers would begin a 24-hour "meeting" at 12:30 a. m. Monday if the case were not disposed of by midnight Sunday.

The local union's plan was quashed last night by the IAM's district council, which apologized for Thursday's production halt, said only off-shift employees could attend the meeting Monday and promised that there would be no interruption of the normal output.

Meanwhile, the IAM's San Diego, Calif., local said about 35,000 employees at Consolidated Aircraft corporation would hold a 24-hour protest meeting Tuesday if the WLB was not ruled by then, but asserted workers would not be asked to leave their jobs.

ALCOA Smelter
Closed By Strike

CLEVELAND—(UN)—Shut today was the smelting division of the Aluminum company of America plant, as company officials guarded against reprisals by strikers who defied the "work or be fired" order of the War Labor board.

Since the ultimatum was presented Wednesday, 82 of 158 workers have been fired for failure to obey the board's order.

Willingness to work was indicated by 72 men on two different shifts, but because of threats from the strikers, they refused to work after reporting to the plant. They were to be kept on the payroll until settlement of the strike.

A company spokesman said that strikers remained outside the plant grounds, intercepting those men who were kept on the payroll through willingness to work.

Three of the five boys in the "gang" ran from the juvenile court rooms Thursday afternoon while one of the boys was in the judge's quarters. Police arrested the trio Friday morning in the postoffice where they were said to have been attempting to pilfer mailboxes.

Judge Cramer said today he favored placing young offenders in special church or welfare schools if he thought there was a chance the boys could be re-habilitated. Sending some youths to the industrial school might do them more harm than good, he added.

Registrations will be resumed, he said, about March 10 for the No. 2 book although no date could be given for resumption of issuance of books No. 1, although applications for the No. 1 books are being taken daily. Beelman said.

Government officials admitted today that the beginning of point rationing of canned and processed foods and the near 50 per cent slash in supplies of rationed foods to hotels and restaurants, which will become effective Monday, may mean skyrocketing restaurant prices and the near future. So far they have settled on no practical plan of preventing or controlling such a situation, they said.

If the price is fixed, the quality and quantity must also be regulated, they found.

Mansfield's unofficial registration figures, by schools, follow: Bowman, 7,510; Brinkerhoff 4,436; Bushnell 2,619; Carpenter 4,017; Hedges 4,676; Newman 3,785; Prospect 3,277; Western 3,873; West Fifth street 1,068; Woodland 1,863; grand total 40,963.

Bellevue Town hall and Shenandoah Community house.

Outcome of the referendum will not be known until Monday, the county agent said, since the owners who register for voting will be checked against the county recorder's files to establish their eligibility.

If 65 per cent of the voting farm owners favor the conservation district, the county will be set up as a conservation area and farmers who desire the assistance of soil technicians in mapping erosion-control and conservation practices will be able to obtain help.

The conservation plan will be placed in operation only on farms where the owners give their consent and approval.

FLIER ESCAPES DEATH IN CRASH

BOSTON—(UN)—One navy aviator was killed and another escaped with minor injuries when their plane crashed Friday afternoon at Cockeysville, Md., the navy announced today.

SUNDAY RIOTING
Saturday night rioting is on the increase, extending not only into the early hours of Sunday but also into the far reaches of the Sabbath. Filling the streets with riotous living does not make for health, happiness, or righteousness.

Destroy the sanctity of the Sabbath and you strike a blow at the cardinal virtues, drying up the moral and spiritual springs of our national life. The church building stands as a monument to the sanctity of the Sabbath, but it is only a monument if there is not a worshipping congregation within its walls every Sunday. Why not accept the invitation to COME TO CHURCH NEXT SUNDAY?

—D. Carl Yoder.

The American Mission to the Lepers received the largest amount ever given for that work during the past year, that is, $300,000. This mission to the Lepers is supported by thirty-seven Protestant denominations.

From many sources comes the report that gas rationing has not so seriously reduced church attendance. Other causes are in evidence such as bad weather, increased Sunday work, and the heavy pressure of daily life.

The Kentucky Baptists are protesting against the "victory tax" on the grounds of separation of church and state. The Western Recorder says, "The power that says to the church, 'You deduct five per cent of the salary of ministers and others' can read: 'usurp the power to say to the church, 'You will be bound by our rules both as to whom you employ and under what conditions.'"

A Service Men's Christian League to assist Protestant chaplains of all denominations has been organized. It will provide the chaplains with religious literature and discussion outlines. It will aid the service men in maintaining church affiliations and help in preparing him for Christian Citizenship when he returns to civil life.

Volunteers in Cranston, Rhode Island, are organizing to aid families of service men. They are shouldering humble duties, planning to clean sidewalks, fix up homes, do errands, carry ash cans, tend furnaces, offer rides, and do carpentering work and other tasks when called upon by a service man's family.

Madame Chiang Kai-shek, China's first lady, now in the United States, teaches that every woman should be an excellent housekeeper and in addition should have a "Cause" that is outside herself and beyond the confines of her home, says Dr. George W. Shepherd, Missionary friend of this leader and of her soldier husband. He says: Madame Chiang runs sewing machines, rolls ban-

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1943

Remember to fill your War Stamp book.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and save space on the windshield for another sticker.

Incident: He was an hour late for a Mansfield meeting because the village from which he came has turned back its clocks.

A physicist says an atom has mighty power but that there's no way to get it to work—and any resemblance to some people may be assumed to be purely coincidental.

Here's News Hitler Will Like

ADOLF HITLER, wherever he may be, has probably already heard about the slow-down in production of flying fortresses, as a result of action by union machinists in the big Boeing plants at Seattle, Wash., and is undoubtedly much cheered thereby.

During recent weeks and months the war news has been far from pleasant for the Nazi Fuehrer, and much of his discomfort has been caused by the growing might of United Nations air power unleashed against the Axis—but now he can be hopeful that this will change and that threats being made by Seattle aircraft employes will carry through to general suspension of warplane production in the United States.

It's the matter of wages that is causing the trouble, and, of course, there's no strike—merely a suspension of production—but the boys who are fighting and dying on battle fronts, and their families and friends at home, may have difficulty in recognizing the difference.

It appears that the War Labor Board has been asked to act on the demand for higher wages, but, according to a union spokesman at a mass meeting of "absentees," the board "has been lulled to complacency through lack of physical demonstration by aircraft workers."

So this is no strike—it is no more than a "physical demonstration" by aircraft workers that they are in position to lose the war for the United Nations unless their demands for wage increases are granted as promptly as they think they should be.

It doesn't matter to them that Brig. Gen. Charles E. Branshaw, district supervisor of army air forces at Santa Monica, Calif., sent them a telegram saying: "This action is little less than treasonable when it is considered that the Boeing flying fortresses constitute one of our most effective striking weapons, without which we cannot hope to win the war."

Hitler, Hirohito and Mussolini will also be glad to learn that there's another big coal miners' strike in the offing, unless wage-increase demands are granted, and that the food production program in this country is bogging down because nobody seems to know what to do about it—and farmers can't compete with the wartime wages being paid by industries for fewer hours of less arduous but no less skilled and specialized work.

Seek To Improve State Legislation

MUCH is said about the encroachment of federal government on the states. Too often the complaints overlook a chief cause: the failure of the states to do what needs to be done. Their default brings in Uncle Sam. If he appears too often on the scene, the remedy is in the states' own hands. They must do what they have neglected to do, and improve on what they are already doing.

One important step would be improvement of the work of state legislatures. Too many dawdle, sitting five or six months with little or nothing to show for it. Nebraska's one-house legislature is an attempt to improve matters. Another is the establishment of legislative councils.

A number of states have such councils. These work all the year round, making investigations and reports, and drafting bills to be considered when the legislature meets. They replace the special committees which often are nothing but junketing outfits. They find out what other states are doing, and how it works. They get information which the average legislator has neither the time nor the means of getting, and greatly save his time.

Here are some examples of their work. In Illinois the council has been looking at the corrupt practices acts of other states, in Kentucky at the regulation of the liquor traffic, Colorado, Kansas, Maryland, Michigan, Virginia and Nebraska are among the states that have legislative councils.

Congressman Reveals Strategy

DUMRESS, rather than intent, was probably responsible for the "aid to the enemy" given by a congressman a few days ago when he noisily revealed that wooden anti-aircraft "guns" and dummy soldiers were atop the House Office Building, instead of actual guns and real soldiers.

It was calmly explained by the war department that this was not unusual procedure and that it was common practice to rotate artillery units from one position to another to mislead Axis agents.

It is unfortunate, of course, that what would properly class as "military information" had to be thus passed around because a congressman "didn't know what it was all about"—but the incident certainly bears out the old saying, "A little knowledge is a dangerous thing."

Reduction In Fire Losses

THE YEAR 1942 closed with fire losses totaling $314,849,000, which was two and one-third per cent under the total of $322,357,000 for 1941, according to figures just released by the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

At a first glance this would not seem like a startling item—but when considered in connection with our war effort and the hundreds of millions of dollars in war products and war building that were involved over and above any preceding year, the fact that fire losses actually dropped in 1942 under 1941, is a remarkable record.

This record was not just an accident. It was due to a combination of efforts—continuous fire prevention education, as carried on by the fire insurance companies, increasingly better fire departments, and excellent work by crime prevention agencies and those charged with control of sabotage of war efforts.

Every effort should be made to make 1943 an even better year than 1942, because the need for fire prevention increases as supplies of all manner of materials become more scarce.

Ominous Political Crisis In India Intensified By Factional Disputes

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

USE of arbitrary methods by England in the establishment of a provisional national government in India is, as I reported yesterday, widely regarded even by some of the greatest Indian leaders as the only solution to the ominous political crisis which has become a menace to Allied interests.

Only when you understand the terrific complexities of the situation does this advocacy of such strong-arm procedure make logic. The point is that the various Indian factions themselves are at loggerheads over issues which have their roots deep in the religious, social and political traditions of the country. These fierce disputes could continue forever and a day, blocking a national settlement.

I want you to hear from one of their great leaders who, I believe, speaks the mind of a vast number of his countrymen.

Meet Dr. Syama Prasad Mukherjee, working president of the Hindu Mahasabha, the military Hindu organization which is bitterly opposed to the Muslim League. Dr. Mukherjee is a son of the late Sir Ashu Mukherjee, a justice of the high court of Calcutta in Bengal, who was known as the "Bengal Tiger" because of his political fearlessness. The son inherited these fighting characteristics and his battle for Indian independence has been stormy. Three times there have been attempts to assassinate him.

DR. MUKHERJEE is held in such high regard generally that many observers advised me to talk with him. I had two long conferences with him in his home in Calcutta. We discussed many points but on the subject of the breakdown of British-Indian negotiations, he said to me:

"My own idea is that the deadlock will never be broken unless the initiative is taken by Britain. The power now rests in the British parliament, and obviously this power must be transferred before any beginning can be made. The vicerey should call together all the different political organizations and say to them: 'We are transferring the power to you. There is, however, one main issue at this moment and that is the war. You must pledge your full support.'"

"If the political parties know that power definitely is coming to them, then they will reach an agreement amongst themselves. Of that I am sure."

"Let the parties which can agree have the power. If there is any party which does not agree and refuses to accept these conditions, then let that party stand outside, and the parties in power will settle with the rebel themselves."

THIS was so strong that I interrupted to ask Dr. Mukherjee whether he meant that the British government was to use "strong-arm methods" and force a settlement along these lines. He nodded emphatically.

"Yes," he replied, "let the power go to the parties which agree to the conditions which I have named, and let those who won't co-operate stand outside. It is by any chance none of the parties agree to this procedure then England would have a free conscience in resuming her imperialistic rule over India."

"In this way we should have a definite answer to the vicerey's query: 'To whom shall we transfer power? The people are quarreling. How can you trust India not to make a treaty with Japan?'"

"That would be safeguarded by the pledge of the Indian leaders in advance that India would fight fully for the Allied cause. We would pledge that India would follow the same policy as the war council. The British commander in chief would have to remain in control of actual war operations in India."

"Indeed, there should be an Allied council to aid the new Indian government."

Dave Boone Says: I WISH Washington wouldn't keep issuing so many warnings to the people that they mustn't be overoptimistic about our success in the war just now. Almost every day some high official emphasizes it. It might be a lot better for morale if on alternate days somebody would issue an old-fashioned, tough-and-ready appeal to the public to let nothing curb their faith in the American fighting man.

I see where Eddie Rickenbacker is getting a lot of hammering from labor leaders and that both political parties are sort of side-stepping responsibility for his plan. Well, Rickenbacker may have gone too far on some points, but don't forget that he is the only leader in this country today whose beliefs and speeches have been reached through personal suffering and torture.

No matter what you think of his views, they came from a speaker who has been closer to the agonies of the fighting fronts and farther away from smug self-interest than any man now in the limelight—and than any of his labor critics.

In those days and nights when he hung by a thread it's my guess that Rick vowed to perform what he took to be a duty to his country, and he ain't the kind of man to go back on a pledge.

dian government. This council should be composed of representatives of Britain, America, China and Russia.

"Once the British government decided to abandon its policy of 'divide and rule' in India, and there was a transfer of power from the British parliament to the Indians, the Indian national government could be formed. This would devote its main efforts to the industrialization and the improvement of economic conditions so that the country might do its full share in prosecuting the war against the common enemy."

"In due course a constitutional assembly would have to draw up a constitution. . . . Let us start our new constitution first as Indians. Let us work it for ten years, and then we can decide what further to do about it. I envisage a government and a constitution which in many respects would follow those of the United States of America."

"We should make provisional autonomy as full as possible. However, there must be a central government which would have to deal with such federal questions as currency, posts, telegraphs, communications, defense and foreign relations."

(Next Article: Does England really desire a settlement of the Indian crisis or is she pursuing a policy of "divide and rule?")

At Home
National Defense.

On the way to his office in the new congressional office buildings, Rep. Harold Dunbar Cooley of North Carolina sometimes glanced toward the roof. He knew that up there stood an anti-aircraft battery, he knew it because some months before congress had been told of the erection of shelter houses to protect the gunners from the heat and cold.

But a few days ago, Rep. Cooley decided to have a look. In civilian clothes, he climbed unchallenged to the roof. Hunched over the guns were military figures—but they were dummies, dressed in army dungarees, "sort of like a scarecrow put out in a melon patch." The guns were authentic looking, but made of wood with metal tips.

Unflustered, the war department admitted the guns were dummies, explained such positions were interspersed with active elements, and rotated from time to time as "an accepted principle in operation in all theaters of war at the present time."

Bedrock. What's the civilian economy's excess weight, what is the maximum that could be eliminated to get that economy down to a total war status?

The Office of Civilian Supply answered the question during the week, releasing a preliminary report prepared confidentially for Economic Stabilization Director James F. Byrnes. To Americans who, so far, have had their food, coffee, tire, gasoline and sugar supplies whittled in varying degrees, the "bedrock" plan looked pretty drastic.

Here's what the OCS says the economy could reduce to, on the basis of a long war: Food 71.8 per cent, clothing 61 per cent, beverages 54.9 per cent (all on the basis of 1941 consumption); automobiles 43.4 per cent and other travel 51.6 per cent; college, football games 20 per cent; professional baseball and football games 70 per cent; barber and beauty shop services 60 per cent; funeral and burial expenses 50 per cent.

Little affected would be utility services, watch and clock repair, services of doctors and dentists. Shoe repairs would be stepped up to 125 per cent.

Intermission. Back in 1928 a former bricklayer and a former automobile salesman made their radio debut as a blackface comedy team. Four years later, as Amos and Andy, they had become one of the marvels of the entertainment field. Millions followed their nightly misadventures; their malapropisms became catch-phrases in American conversation; movie theaters set up radios as concessions to patrons who otherwise would stay home rather than miss the program.

Last week, for the first time since they inaugurated their show, Amos and Andy—Freeman Gosden, 43, and Charles Correll, 52—were off the air at the termination of their contract. Their vaudeville promised a return, under a new sponsor, later in the year.

Abroad
War's Worst.

It was dark and bitter cold on the North Atlantic when a torpedo blasted a hole in a U. S. passenger-cargo ship carrying military personnel and civilian war-workers overseas. More than 900 passengers and crews made for the lifeboats in the 30 minutes the ship stayed afloat.

Four nights later a second passenger-cargo ship shook with the deathblow from an Axis torpedo. Five hundred persons clambered into life boats and rafts. When the navy announced the twin disaster,

Farm Problems Become Serious As Industrial Wages Lure Labor

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

A FEW MONTHS AGO, operators of America's 6,000,000 farms buckled down to the greatest production job in agricultural history. Food, said Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, will win the war, and he exhorted the farmers to make four bushels of potatoes grow where three grew before, to step up food production all along the line, at least 30 per cent.

For a while the farm prospect was bright; prices were good and the demand was unprecedented. The situation was the reverse of the dreary days of the mid-thirties, when crops were plowed under and the government paid livestock men to keep their meat from the markets.

Cause of Worry. But during the week, as the nation headed into an unprecedented system of food control, the farm picture was out of focus. Millions of city folks looked to their country cousins to come up with enough groceries to prevent an actual shortage of food—if not this summer, then certainly during next fall and winter.

The farmers' position was far from assuring. Of the estimated 8,000,000 to 10,000,000 persons normally employed in agriculture, more than 800,000 have been taken into the armed services. More than 2,000,000 others have left their farm jobs (average monthly pay: $82) for places in war industry (average: $185).

Obviously, said the farmers' spokesmen at Washington, something must be done to end this procession away from the soil. For a starter, they proposed higher prices for farm products, so the farmer might have a greater income, more nearly complete with war industries for manpower.

All factions agreed the food problem was inextricably wound up with the manpower problem—the military draft, the war production program. While farm bill legislators called for a leveling-off of the selective service demands, the White House countered with a general promise that some troops would be made available for harvesting operations.

Busy OPA. What really stimulated the consumers' interest in the food production problem was OPA's series of swift steps during the week. First, OPA disclosed that for March, the average consumer would have less than half the normal supply of canned and processed fruits and vegetables under the new rationing program OPA agreed it represented "scarce ration."

Before householders recovered from this shock, OPA added to the rationed list dry beans and peas, lentils and dehydrated and dried soups.

Of some help was the next step: Imposition of price ceilings on fresh tomatoes, green beans, cabbage, carrots and peas. But most housewives had noted the steady advance in the retail price of these items, realized that supplementing the canned food supply with fresh vegetables would send the cost of feeding their families up several notches.

Not only does this mean that more than 35 per cent of congress will be full of sympathy and understanding in matters of rehabilitation, hospitalization and compensation for disabilities, but it also means that that portion of congress has a working knowledge of military affairs.

Red Army Alone. As the Red army came to the 25th anniversary of its founding this week, Joseph Stalin gave it an order of the day, and tossed in a surprise for the Allies.

"In view of the absence of a second front in Europe," he said, "the Red army alone is bearing the whole weight of the war."

The rest of the order praised his men, exhorted them to the death, against a "Fascist Germany" coming more and more exhausted. He told how 4,000,000 Germans had died in Russia in the last 20 months, he derided the strategy of the invaders.

In Short
Reported: By the OWI, U. S. losses since the start of the war: 10,150 dead; 10,959 wounded, 41,181 missing.

Approved: By the senate, legislation for the long-proposed merger of Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies.

Lost: In South Pacific operations, America's largest submarine, 2,710-ton, mine-laying Argonaut, with a complement of 102 men.

Inducted: Ray Robinson, top-ranking Negro welterweight boxer, into the army; slated for March 1 induction, Leo Durocher, Brooklyn Dodgers' manager.

CHAPTER III

Lying back, Carol thought, "He's asking me to have a date with him. A date . . . How funny, how young . . . I'd forgotten." When she was 16 the phone could ring and a boy would ask, "How about Saturday night, Carol?" There's a fraternity dance, and she would look at her mother, her mouth forming the boy's name and know by her mother's expression whether she could go. Would it be like that again? How could it be when our mother was dead and you were 26 and you had been married and divorced? This freedom, this terrible, unwanted freedom came stranger as the days went on with closed channels opening and throwing a queer light into an uncharted future.

"I'm waiting for your answer," he said.

"The answer is in the affirmative, I suppose."

He was merely curious about her, she thought, curious about a woman who had been one of a party at four o'clock and who had cried softly and desperately five.

Sitting up again, Carol gathered her things and stood up, wiping her arms into a white robe. He did not stir as she left him, her feelings a curious mixture of rebellion against his sex admiration for his obvious awkwardness. It surprised her, as she at the key in her cabin door, that she was anticipating the evening with him. But was it not only a wedge between a gap? The dangers of her new freedom had not begun to realize, perhaps in preoccupation with them she would not long look back.

Wearing a flame colored frock, she entered the crowded bar that evening and saw Clive at a small table waiting for her. Frowning, half-smile curving his mouth, he was again the amused spectator the antics of four young passers at the next table. But she did not see Carol's vivid frock caught the corner of one eye, for he turned his head quickly, got to his feet and his eyes paid her an extravagant compliment.

"I thought you'd forgotten," he said. "I'm very glad you didn't."

She learned that he was an engineer who had been in South America for three years and was returning to the United States on his first leave of absence. He was a blond, with wavy hair and green waves were topped by a foamy crest, and no light penetrated the black canopy of sky. His gentleness surprised her.

for when her small white wrap dropped to the floor and he picked it up and she said that she would like it about her shoulders, he placed it there deftly and gently. One would feel for him either a violent antipathy or a violent attraction and she wondered whether anyone else had suspected that he was a poseur and that perhaps a crude and cruel person spoke through the voice with the satin finish. She supposed that she could be flattered because he had singled her out. Flattered? How careful she must be of flattery. Chilled hands reaching for warmth . . . Burned hands reaching for a soothing balm.

It was pathetic how grateful she had become for the smallest consideration, how vulnerable to commendation and how highly sensitized against disfavor. Those weeks before the divorce, her caustic self-criticism, each day trying to hold their marriage together, each day knowing that the proximity of seven years of marriage had made her love Bill no less than in the beginning.

Leaving the bar they went to the dining-room where she discovered that Clive had ordered a special dinner. A perfectionist? Twice he sent back the wine, the last time speaking crossly to the steward. Conversation did not languish and they spoke of ports the ship had touched, of the uncertain world conditions, of restaurants and plays that had been popular in New York three years ago. Did she know a certain small restaurant and a certain small theater where only foreign films were shown? It was then that Carol told him she did not live in New York, but in the small flourishing city of Clinton, some four hours' ride from New York.

Clive said, "Your elderly admirer is looking blades through your back. Poor old guy."

"He's Cornelius Weger."

"I don't care who he is. He's still a poor old guy. There's a movie tonight. Would you care to see it before we dance?"

"I shouldn't care to see it at all."

"Good! We'll walk. But you won't be warm enough. It's getting cold."

"I've a heavier wrap."

He lifted bronzed brows and smiled at her. "I'll wait for you."

The wind was strong at the bow. Clive had to take Carol's arm to steady her, and when they came to the portside and he saw her flying hair, he laughed. Great green waves were topped by a foamy crest, and no light penetrated the black canopy of sky. She was going back . . . If only she could empty her mind of all thoughts until she was there.

"Cold?" Clive asked. "I have a deck chair on the top deck and I'll find another. Maybe we can smoke a cigar up there and not be blown to bits."

He had placed his deck chair in a secluded corner. Covering her with a blanket, he left her. She saw him presently, his tweed top coat flapping in the wind, dragging a chair across the deck. They lighted cigarettes, seeing only outlines of each other. No wind penetrated the corner and no sounds except the swish of water and the even, almost unnoticed thud of the ship's motors.

After a while he said, "Carol, everything I want to say to you will sound like the mouthings of a villain with a waxed mustache—that you are an unusually attractive woman saved by the grace of God, from being just another blond."

She smiled. But she didn't speak at once. Then she said, "I don't quite know how to answer you. You see, I don't know any more what free women say to men they've just met . . . I've been married for seven years and I've just come from Reno. My husband fell in love with another woman."

The words had no meaning. She had said them, but they were not true. They still could not be true. It was as though she were speaking for someone else or speaking the lines of a play or a picture. They were trite, melodramatic words, a fiction formula.

His voice was sober. "I'm sorry. I'm terribly sorry."

She had seen Bill at his worst; they had quarreled; he had failed her in large and small ways, but always in normal ways. And now she loved him still. Yet her pride had been hurt; her ego had been trampled upon. But they were not major issues. She would recover from them. She loved him, knowing his faults and weaknesses. It was her love of Bill and the habit of living with him from which she would not recover. And he had loved her, knowing her, having seen her at her worst. But it was Evelyn he loved now.

She said, "Perhaps you'd rather dance."

"No," he replied with emphasis. "That's an outmoded form of intimacy."

If he had asked her to explain love to him, she could not have done it. There were a thousand synonyms. But she could tell him that love was not merely biological or spiritual or mental but all three and something else, a mysterious something she could not name. Lately she had thought that a divorce was the last thing she had expected to happen to her because her parents had been unhappy and as a girl growing up she had made up her mind to avoid the small differences and the petty bickerings that had made them remote and unfriendly. But her father had never recovered from her mother's death.

He had resigned his position and gone to live with a bachelor brother in Florida, enshrining Carol's mother in his memory. Yet in all the years she had been with them she had never heard her parents say one endearing thing to each other. No wonder people who weren't married couldn't understand it!

Had Clive Holdridge infected her with his great vitality, making her thoughts and senses spontaneously vivid? She was trembling again and cold as she heard his chair scrape along the deck while he moved closer.

He said, "You're counting on your friends. Don't. They'll hold it against you. They always hold it against the woman. You've no friends until you've tried your new status on them."

"Oh, but I have. I have very good friends."

"I don't trust myself. How can I trust others? The pious say they know and trust themselves because they've never had temptations. It's easy for them. I can forgive myself when my senses are tempted, but I can never forgive myself for being stupid, for postponing something I want and can have and for trusting people because they are fellow human beings. We're a higher type of animal living in a civilized jungle. I've hunted in Africa. An animal looks for weakness in another and then attacks."

"You're a cynic."

He chuckled. "On the contrary, I am so sophisticated that I am unsophisticated, a completely simple uncomplicated person. Consequently no one understands me and not a few people dislike me heartily."

In her mind pictures unwound

for which no words were adequate. The delicious craziness of a college dance, the modest, girlish blue frock her mother had made and the sweet, mad music of an orchestra imported from New York for the occasion. Never sensationally popular, one of the "nice" girls boys took to call on their mothers, she had been thrilled into temporary speechlessness when the strange boy "cut in." The agony of those days and especially that night, the uncertainties, the wondering whether you'd said the right things and if he'd dance with you again or if you'd ever see him again.

He was Bill Sturtevant and he danced with her several times that night. The following Sunday afternoon he came to the modest brown bungalow where she lived and took her out in his father's car. Oldest of three brothers, he had left college after two years to take a promising position in a large corporation. A year later, rejecting plans for college, she had married him.

Once again only the small things were as incredibly clear as they were credibly dear. She could scarcely remember the elopement or the trip to Atlantic City. The hotel room or what she had worn that day she could not remember at all. When she thought of her honeymoon, she saw a boy and girl walking along the Boardwalk, oblivious to passing faces and jewels in shop windows, a boy and girl intensely in love, planning an intertwined life.

Her marriage, her happiness in it took the sting from her mother's death. For her mother had liked the stability of Bill and had been glad that they had been married without fuss or expense. What had she thought about the first year in the hideous little apartment? They had had a few friends and so little money. She knew only that they had been happy, unworried and supremely confident. She would always remember that after their first quarrel they had both cried.

There was so much from which to draw in adding up seven years of marriage. Nor had there been any precise moment when she had ceased to see through a romantic glow and had begun to realize that she had married a bundle of very human inconsistencies, a temper, an unreasonableness and the selfishness that accompanies a driving ambition. She had discovered them gradually, adjusting, making allowances and forgiving.

The scene changed. After a series of promotions, always gaily celebrated, they had a savings account, their own furniture and a car. No illnesses, no setbacks retarded them. The plan for their lives was working out nicely. They were immensely grateful.

Dear God, you could scan all those days and nights and years between puffs on a cigar!

She said, "World events tend to minimize personal problems. don't you think? Your own affairs seem small and inconsequential when you think of the big issues at hand."

He chuckled again. "Poor international delivery service. I'm going home and make my will before all hell breaks loose." Moving closer still, he reached for her cold hands and rubbed warmth into them. Then he laughed as he looked up into her face. "Don't draw away. You still feel married, don't you? Remember this, you're more attractive now than a woman who has never been married. Else why should I freeze my blood that is thin from the tropics up here with you when I could be making love to the girl who is spending old Cornelius Weger's money? Because there's more of a challenge to a woman like you. I'm not a name. I'm a type and you'd never have met me if you hadn't met me on a ship."

A woman like her? What kind of a woman had she become?

He said, "I've got to radio a message to a girl in New York. She's sweet and demure and gentle and for five years I've always gone back to her. I sometimes think she isn't sweet and demure and gentle at all, but damned clever. Will you wait for me?"

Carol smiled. "Not for five years."

He went away, laughing, leaving her to turn over pages of the past.

Breakfasts at the Inn are popular with Mansfielders for they are not only tasty but nutritious and inexpensive as well.

Breakfast rolls and doughnuts are delivered each morning to the restaurant to accompany steaming hot coffee of the finest quality. Mr. Beniller is particularly proud of his coffee. It is drip

NO SHORTAGE OF GOOD CHEER AT THIRTY-SIX BAR

Wide Stock of Fine Liquors Still Available at Popular Fun Spot.

Liquor stocks may be rationed but never good cheer at the 36 Bar.

For the same old fashioned friendliness is dispensed with consistent good humor and sly wit by Jerry Wehinger, proprietor of this popular leisure-spot.

Despite present shortages, business progresses in much the usual style although in some cases customers may be asked to make a second choice.

"The fact remains," Jerry declares, "that we're doing the best we can with what we have." Continuing he says, "We hope, of course, that the situation will improve and things will soon return to normal. In the meantime, our customers are taking it on the chin with admirable American-made spirit."

In fact, Jerry explains, customers are cultivating a taste for a number of "substitutes" which they were not familiar with before. And, at any rate, the principal "lift" comes from the good fellowship that accompanies the refreshment rather than from the refreshment itself.

There's certainly plenty of fun of a good old fashioned sort among the patrons of the 36 Bar. Jerry prides himself on catering to the "old timers" who consider his cafe a place where friends may meet for those all-important off-duty hours of relaxing leisure.

There has never been a time when the problem of morale has loomed so importantly in civilian life . . . when folks feel so great a need for respite from war taut nerves.

There is no pleasanter way to heighten the morale and aid wartime efficiency than through making the most of relaxing leisure among friends.

You'll find friends, fun and a fine stock of wines, beers and a number of brands of liquors at Jerry's 36 Bar.

During the business meeting, in charge of Mrs. V. H. Lodde, president, the group contributed books for the Victory Book campaign, and Mrs. Lodde appointed a nominating committee composed of Mrs. F. J. Schuster, Mrs. W. B. Ford and Mrs. D. G. Roth.

D. of A. Council Has Friday Meet

The Lady Garfield Council, No. 24, D. of A., met Friday night in the Eagles building for their regular meeting, with Mrs. Clara Cramer, councillor, in charge of the business meeting.

During the business meeting, it was announced that the degree team will have its regular meeting March 4 in the home of Mrs. Fannie Nail, 321 West Fifth street. Mrs. Martha Reishert won the contest prize.

The next regular meeting will be held March 12 in the Eagles building, after which there will be a social hour.

Club Meets With Mrs. J. P. Reed

Mrs. J. P. Reed, Crider road, entertained members and families of the Buena Vista Community club at her home Friday night. Mrs. Ralph Reed and Mrs. Russell, and Mr. and Mrs. Howard Shepherd were guests.

Frank McMullen, president, presided at the short business meeting. Donations were accepted for the Red Cross. Contests were played, and prizes were won by Mr. and Mrs. George Weiner and Howard Shepherd.

Mr. and Mrs. Shepherd were welcomed into the club as new members. The place of the next meeting has not yet been decided.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE By Shepard Barclay "The Authority on Authorities"

TAKE A GOOD LOOK "ONE PEEK beats two finesses" is an old joke dating from the earliest days of whist. On plenty of occasions, a mere glance at an opponent's hand would solve your every problem. Of course, they aren't obliging enough to give you a look, and you wouldn't look anyway if they did hold their hands carelessly. But you can get the effect sometimes by taking a very good look "in your mind's eye."

When your contract is beaten unless a certain card is in a certain location, merely imagine that you have actually seen it there, and govern yourself accordingly.

One duplicate declarer won the 10 with the A, and the other was beaten. The heart Q was allowed to win. The 10 was taken by the K and South entered his hand with the spade K in order to lead clubs.

"Pitfalls of Love" (A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers) By ADELE GARRISON

Noel's voice held no nuance of mirth like Mary's when she dramatically reminded him that I had heard their romantic colloquy.

"No!" he protested in horrified accents. "Oh, Aunt Madge, I do beg your pardon! I completely forgot you were here! This is awful!"

"It isn't awful at all," I said, trying to put reassurance and understanding into my voice and smile. "I couldn't get away with out disturbing you, so I did the next best thing. I concentrated so intently on a problem of my own that what you said had no meaning for me."

Madge's Lie Worth While. It was worth the lie, I told myself, to see Noel's relief.

"There was only one way to solve mine when I knew the truth," Noel said. "Aunt Madge, do you know that Mary is terribly fatigued and run down? She actually needs rest this week. Your father wishes her to take it."

"I agree with you," I said, "and Aunt Katharine just has confirmed what was only surmise on my part. She says she has not liked Mary's lack of color for some time."

"Heavens!" Mary said with a laugh. "I must change my brand of rouge and lipstick."

"Mary!" Noel ejaculated in shocked accents.

"Just put this down in your notebook, darling," she said. "There's nothing the matter with me that a good rest won't cure. So go ahead, Auntie Madge. Give us the set-up."

"I'm afraid I haven't time now," I said, looking at my wrist watch. "That will have to be postponed until tomorrow morning, as early as possible."

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Club Celebrates 14th Anniversary At Dinner-Party

The fourteenth anniversary of the "V" club was celebrated Thursday evening at the annual party in the Steiger tea room on Glenner avenue.

A chicken dinner was served to the group at 6:30 p. m. at a long table centered with a bowl of red roses, with favors of miniature dolls dressed in red, white and blue, marking each of the member's places.

A short program followed the dinner, and included readings by Mrs. Jane Neff and Mrs. Mary Moser. Mrs. Annie Burger, one of the founders of the club read a brief history of the organization, and the program closed with group singing, led by Mrs. Donna Berg.

Cards were played at three tables, with prizes being won by Mrs. Lillie Markley, Mrs. Esther Moser and Mrs. Anna Case.

The next regular meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Louise Long, 499 Lida street, on March 11. Arrangements for the anniversary party were in charge of officers who had served during the past year. Mrs. Markley, Mrs. Esther Moser, Mrs. Neff and Mrs. Mary Moser.

Clean Shades Make Them Last

Now that the War Production board has ordered thumbs down on wire lamp-shade frames, shades made of silk and other fabrics have joined the list of household irreplaceables.

Unshaded lights are not an immediate prospect, however. With proper care, fabric shades that are now in good condition can be made to last for many more years.

All lamp shades should be frequently dusted with a soft clean brush or a vacuum cleaner attachment, but fabric shades sometimes need more than brushing to remove ingrained dirt.

The most practical way to banish harmful dirt is by soap and water washing. Metallic ribbons and braids, or other trimmings that may not be washable, should be removed. The shade should then be dusted up and down in a tub of lukewarm soapsuds until the colors brighten and the dirt floats out. A soft brush may be used if the soil is stubborn. Rinse in several clear waters of a lukewarm temperature.

Speed in washing and drying will reduce color-loss in fabrics that are not colorfast. Drying can be hastened by placing the shade in a current of air from the windows or an electric fan. Blotting with a soft cloth will also shorten the drying period.

If the trimmings are soiled and cannot be washed separately, make new ones, or leave the shade untrimmed. Don't spoil the effect by sewing soiled braid or fringe on a freshly washed shade.

In addition to their use for small roasts, porcelain enameled bake pans are helpful as receptacles for washing vegetables, containers for jelly glasses or jars while they are being filled, and for many other needs.

HOROSCOPE For Sunday, Feb. 28.

Sunday's horoscope is a fairly favorable one, with practical plans under moderate impetus for progress and desired fulfillment. This may draw on skill, attention to details, wise use of financial and intellectual resources.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately active and progressive year, in which clever, shrewd and vigilant tactics may promote desired ends and thwart certain sinister, conniving or scheming entanglements. Well-organized strategies, sound plans, wit and careful changes should assist.

A child born on this day should be clever, witty, resourceful and intuitive, but possibly may be easily duped or imposed upon.

For Monday, March 1. Monday's astrological forecast is a rather difficult one to analyze, as it has conflicting aspects, affecting the personal relations with public supervisors or those in authority. There are portents of defeat and duplicity, yet an opportunity for outstanding performance by taking advantage of unusual or radical situations.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflict. Some expanding of finances offers certain openings for exceptional public service and increased popularity, but with dangers and defeats from treachery, duplicity and subtle undercurrents.

A child born on this day should have much ability, with versatility and shrewdness in business.

Use Right Utensil For Your Specific Tasks In Kitchen

In making selections of porcelain enameled utensils for specific cooking tasks, it is well to keep in mind the specialized uses of each utensil. This is an aid to kitchen efficiency by helping to prevent waste and insuring cooking satisfaction.

Among the specialized uses of the most commonly used porcelain enameled utensils are: SAUCE PANS—Sauces, small vegetables, fruits, syrups, warming leftovers.

SAUCE POTS—Larger vegetables, fruits, soups, stews, pot roasts, jams and jellies. KETTLES—Soups, pot roasts, foods in large quantities.

BAKE PANS—This includes deep pie pans, pudding pans, etc. Pie, bread (double or triple loaf), oven canning. Also may be used as auxiliary storage pans for bread, cakes, cookies, other package goods.

FRYING PANS—Vegetables, bacon, eggs, fish. DEEP-FAT FRYING PAN—Vegetables, fritters, fruits, noodles, doughnuts, fowl, meats, fish.

ROASTERS—Meats, fowl, fish. CANNERS—Canning vegetables, fruits. Can also be used as stock pots.

Accessory Items Necessary. In addition, certain accessory items in porcelain enameled ware are usually necessary. These include such utensils as refrigerator dishes for food storage, teakettles, mixing bowls, dishpans, tea and coffee pots, ladles, basting spoons, slotted spoons, sink drainers, colanders and such others as individual needs dictate. Food not only may be stored in enameled refrigerator dishes with perfect safety, but also may be reheated again in the same dish. This saves extra work in the kitchen. Tea and coffee producers recommend enameled tea or coffee makers.

THEATERS Colman-Carson.

Greer Garson and Ronald Colman co-star in M.G.M.'s "Random Harvest," which opens at the mid-night show at the Ohio tonight.

Colman, a victim of amnesia because of world war battles, walks away from a mental hospital. He meets Miss Garson, and the two fall in love. They marry and a child is born to them. Colman is struck by a car on a Liverpool street, and when he regains consciousness, he is Charles Rainer, member of a wealthy English family.

His three years with Miss Garson are completely blacked out.

Lucky Jordan.

"Tough guy" Alan Ladd stars in "Lucky Jordan," top hit at the Madison today. Ladd, a big shot racketeer is inducted into the army. He soon becomes tired of army life and goes A. W. O. L.

The tough guy is on the "right side" in this film, capturing a group of Nazi spies. "The Great Gildersleeve," starring Harold Peary and all the rest of the stars from the popular Sunday night radio program, is the second film.

Major and Minor.

The sparkling comedy, "The Major and the Minor," starring Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland opens today at the Ritz. Complications arise when Ginger assumes the minor role in order to buy a half-fare train ticket to her home from New York. She meets Milland on the train, and the kindly major offers to help the "child" reach her home. The Andrews sisters star in the other hit, "Give Out Sisters."

Air Force Story.

Robert Taylor plays the lead in "Flight Command," story of the Navy Air Force, now showing at the Majestic. "On the Great White Trail" completes the bill.

Whiz Kids Pin Hopes On Phillip

Smiley's Defensive Skill Also Counted On.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO (UPI)—The University of Illinois relies on a pair of basketball specialists, Andy Phillip and Jack Smiley, to bring it a victory, over Northwestern and its second straight Big Ten basketball championship tonight at the Chicago stadium.

Phillip represents Illinois' big offensive punch and Smiley is the defensive genius of Coach Doug Mills' great quintet. The pair has proved too much for conference opponents to handle in 10 previous games this season.

Phillip and Smiley were the "guinea pigs" of an experiment Mills made at the outset of the season.

Phillip played guard and Smiley was a regular forward on Illinois' championship team last season. Phillip showed great offensive ability and finished sixth among conference scorers with 159 points in 15 games. Smiley demonstrated greater ability as a defensive performer than as a scorer.

With the record of their sophomore season as a guide, Mills had Phillip and Smiley switch positions at the outset of the current campaign.

Phillip has developed into one of the greatest point makers in Big Ten history. The Illinois ace has 199 points in 10 games and is gunning for the all-time mark of 242 points set a season ago by Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin in 15 games.

In an era when little attention is devoted to defensive play, Smiley has proved that effective guarding isn't a lost art. A week ago he turned in his greatest performance when he held Kotz scoreless for the first time in the Badger forward's career.

Phillip and Smiley are the principal reasons Illinois rates as the favorite over Northwestern. The Wildcats have in Otto Graham a point-maker who rates third in the individual scoring race, but they can offer no one comparable to Smiley.

Smiley will draw the assignment of covering Graham and the odds are the Northwestern star will not approach the 19 point total he compiled against Illinois earlier in the season.

A victory for Illinois will climax the first unbeaten conference season for a Big Ten team since 1919. The Illinois have Chicago to meet Monday, but that's an automatic triumph by whatever margin the campaign cagers care to make it.

Star Milers Battle Again

Dodds, Mitchell and Dixon Decide Title.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK (AP)—The wildest scramble, for the nebulous title of America's outstanding mile foot-racer, in recent years, should reach a climax tonight when Gil Dodds, Frank Dixon, and Earl Mitchell come together in the National A. A. U. championships before a near-sell-out crowd at Madison Square Garden.

Each of these lads has one mile victory to his credit in this year's campaign. Mitchell won the Milwaukee mile; Dixon captured the event at the Boston A. A. games and last week, Dodds won the Baxter mile of the N. Y. A. C. carnival.

This trio will be shooting for the meet record of 4:08.7 set by Dodds in winning the event last year. It is ridiculous to try and speculate on the possibility of a new record. This is the type of a race in which a new record might easily be set; or it could prove one of the slowest in the history of the games. Because of the variety of styles utilized in the running up to this point there is no telling what type of race it might be.

Dodds won last week's race with a blistering 59.7 second quarter which left his opponents bewildered. Whether he will elect to run a similar race tonight or let someone else establish his pace is something Mitchell and Dixon would like to know.

Some six records will fall if the crystal ball of Dan Ferris, national secretary of the A. A. U. is in working order. Dan thinks marks in the mile, pole vault, low and high hurdles, 60-yard dash and three-mile run will be erased.

Cornie Warnerham is a cinch to break the meet mark in the vault. It belongs to Earl Meadows and stands at 14 feet 4 1/2 inches. Warnerham is a cinch to top that while the presence of Pvt. Barney Ewell and Eddie Conwell in the dash seems to indicate the record of 6.2 seconds is in jeopardy.

Aviation Cadet Whitey Hlad, Bob Wright, National Outdoor hurdles champ, Warren Halliburton of N. Y. U., and Harold Stickle, ex-Pitt champ, are the guys who will menace the hurdle marks.

In the three-mile run, Greg (Old Man River) Rice, winner of 59 straight, is confident of establishing a new mark. If he sets a new world mark, it will be his third straight in this department.

Glad to be back? . . . He kisses American soil.

Once the toast of the boxing world, Corp. Barney Ross, of the U. S. Marines, returns to the United States after going through his "toughest fight" on Guadalcanal. Ross, 32, is credited with killing 22 Japs during an engagement last Nov. 19. Ross is shown at San Diego, Cal., upon his return aboard a big hospital ship. He has been suffering from malaria and spent some time in a field hospital in the southwest Pacific. Among interesting bits of information Ross gave interviewers was his bout with a South sea island champion, who weighed 215 pounds. Ross had a tough time with him but finally kayoed him. Following his defeat of the native boxer, the island king offered Ross his choice of a bride from among his daughters. Ross, naturally, made a polite refusal.

Bulldogs, Lakewood Lead Swim Field

COLUMBUS (AP)—Lakewood and Canton McKinley high schools emerged today as the strongest contenders for honors in the annual Ohio interscholastic swimming meet at Ohio State university.

Lakewood qualified contestants for each of seven final events in preliminaries last night. Canton McKinley qualified for six events.

Qualifiers in an eighth event, fancy diving, will be determined today.

Other schools qualifying for the finals were: Cincinnati Walnut Hills, Columbus North Maumee, Fremont Ross, Cincinnati St. Xavier, Cleveland East Tech, Cleveland Shaw, Columbus Aquinas, Akron Buchtel, Cleveland Shaker Heights, Massillon Y.M.C.A., Findlay, Cincinnati Purcell, Akron Garfield.

Sugar Avenges LaMotta Loss

Scores Decisive Win Over Tough Jacob.

DETROIT (AP)—Lanky Ray (Sugar) Robinson, probably the best fighter never to have won a championship, is ready to step into a real fight Tuesday as Pvt. Walker Smith of the U. S. army, after wiping his slate clean with a decisive victory over tough Jacob La Motta, whom he spotted 15 1/2 pounds.

Robinson, the pride of New York's Harlem and uncrowned king of the welterweights, cleaned up on unfinished business as a champion should by getting off the floor to outpunch La Motta, the one-man riot from the Bronx, before 15,149 spectators who paid $60.710 at Olympia stadium last night. La Motta weighed 160 1/2.

The verdict received the unanimous support of Referee Sam Hennessy and the two judges, and it amply avenged Sugar Ray's only setback in a 132-fight career at La Motta's hands three weeks ago.

Many customers booed the verdict, probably because La Motta had gathered a huge personal following here, but Robinson didn't seem to mind.

Both boys will feel much better today when they stop by to pick up checks for $15,000 each. Robinson's record reads: 131 victories, 95 by knockouts, and one defeat.

Superior Height Wins For M'Kinley Quintet

Parks Gets 19 Points For Victors While Hahn, Baker Each Hoop 17.

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sport Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH TYGERS gave fans the thrill of the season last night at the high school gym, but couldn't quite overcome the advantage in size held by Canton McKinley's Bulldogs and dropped a close 52-56 decision for their seventh defeat of the cage campaign against 12 wins.

There was nothing wrong with the Tygers that a few inches in height couldn't cure, or that a wee bit of luck on shots that rolled off the hoops wouldn't have helped.

And when all is said and done, there was nothing so remarkable about the great Bulldogs of Canton McKinley that the loss of rubber-legged Ernie Parks wouldn't have ruined But Parks, with three personal fouls against him at the half, refused to commit that fourth misplay, and continued to control rebounds under both baskets in the second half even as he had in the first.

Parks outscored Mansfield's bucket twins, Bob Baker and Dean Hahn by only two points, getting 19 against 17 each for the two Tygers, but the ease with which he got his points, and the timing of his scoring efforts gave Canton an edge in the hole that turned back every Mansfield threat once the Bulldogs took the lead.

Canton didn't get into the lead until two minutes and thirty seconds of the second quarter had elapsed. Mansfield piling up a 7-2 margin midway in the first period and making the Bulldogs battle to gain a 9-9 tie at the quarter.

The Bulldogs were handicapped by the loss of Vic Werner, veteran guard, who discovered yesterday noon that he had the measles, just an hour before his teammates started the trip to Mansfield. Then Earl Loucks fouled out with a minute and 48 seconds of the second quarter left to play, and with Zimmer and Kosmides taking the place of the Bulldog regulars, the McKinley teamwork didn't have a thing on the Tygers.

Haystack got the first bucket of the ball game, a long shot from the side, but that was only the signal for the Tygers to go into action, and they swept into a 7-2 lead before the dazed Bulldogs could figure it out. Baker missed a free shot, but Lamoreaux tipped in a follow shot, and Doug Myers got a sucker shot on a perfect block play. Baker added a free point. Zimmer missed a pair of free shots. Hahn connected on a one-hander from the corner and it was 7-2 Kosmides replaced Zimmer. Loucks got a free point. Haverstock sank a one-hander from the side. Baker connected from the circle. Cook hooped a long leave, and just before the quarter horn Parks got a follow shot to tie it up at 9-9.

The Tygers failed to get a bucket in the second quarter as McKinley outscored them 15-6 for a 24-15 margin at the half. Baker got four free points in the period, and Hahn two for the Mansfield total, while Parks paced the Bulldog scoring with four follow shots. It looked like the Bulldogs were deliberately missing free tosses so he could bail 'em in for two points instead of one.

Then the Tygers got on the ball in the third period, outscoring the visitors 19-12 and closing the gap at 34-36. Baker dribbled in for a bucket, and Haverstock got a follow shot. Hahn caged a free toss and Baker dribbled in for another bucket to make it 20-26. Haverstock scored from mid-floor and Parks under the hoop. Parks missed a free shot but Cook followed it up for two points, and it was 32-20 for McKinley.

Doug Myers got a follow-up. Lamoreaux hooped a one-hander from the side. Baker twice made good on double free shots and it was 28-34. Haverstock got a follow shot and Lamoreaux scored on a pivot. Zimmer sank a pair of free shots and it was 36-30. Hahn carried a one-hander from the side and Lou Myers hooped a follow shot to make it 34-36 at the third period.

The last period was fire-wagon basketball with the two teams trading bucket for bucket. Twice McKinley took a 6-point margin, but usually the difference ranged from two to four points with the Bulldogs leading.

Haverstock and Lou Myers traded buckets. Haverstock scored again under the hoop and Cook from the side to make it 12-30. Hahn connected on a one-hander from the corner and added a pair of free points and it was 12-40. Zimmer talked under the hoop and so did Parks and it was 16-40. Baker got a pair of free points to make it 16-42.

Parks got a follow shot and Hahn a one-hander from the corner. Kosmides, who shot nearly every time he got hold of the ball, finally connected from the side and it was 50-44. Doug Myers scored under the bucket and Lamoreaux on a follow up and it was 50-48 with two minutes and 30 seconds to go.

Canton took time out and decided to stall. In order to break up the fall, Mansfield deliberately fouled and Cook missed a free toss, and let Parks follow it up for two points. Zimmer also got a follow, and it was 51-48.

Hahn scored from the side and Kosmides got a free point on a double foul. Hahn missing his free shot, it was 55-50 with only 20 seconds left. Cook got a free point, Hahn hooped a sucker shot, and Cook missed a free throw. McKinley 53, Mansfield 52.

In the preliminary game Mansfield Reserves scored a 36-19 win over the vocational department, leading 9-6 at the quarter, 16-12 at the half and 22-17 at the third quarter. They outscored the shop boys 14-1 in the final period.

Mike Zivkoff led the Reserves with 11 points and Louis Nameth tallied 10 for the shop.

But the Bulldogs had Parks, and that was almost enough. They also had the great Dale Haverstock who connected for 15 points, running his season total to 242, a new all-time season's record for Canton McKinley players.

Haverstock wasn't sensational last night, however, not nearly as sensational as little Bobby Baker and Dean Hahn. In fact Captain Bill Cook was more conspicuous for his play than the Bulldog leading scorer.

Zippers Boost Win Mark to 15 Games

(By Associated Press)

Akron boosted its season's basketball record to 15 victories against three defeats by trouncing Wayne, 35 to 39, at Detroit, Mich., last night, but the Zippers remained in third place behind Toledo and Capital in the statewide standings.

The only other Buckeye teams in action were Baldwin-Wallace and Heidelberg of the Ohio conference, with the Yellow Jacks downing the Student Princes, 32 to 28, at Berea. The victory gave the Yellow Jacks a record of 10 wins in 17 starts, and seven league triumphs against two losses.

But you can get the effect sometimes by taking a very good look "in your mind's eye." One duplicate declarer made that and the other was beaten. The heart Q was allowed to win the 10 was taken by the K and South entered his hand with the spade K in order to lead clubs.

"Pitfalls of Love" (A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers) By ADELE GARRISON

Noel's voice held no nuance of mirth like Mary's when she dramatically reminded him that I had heard their romantic colloquy. "No!" he protested in horrified accents. "Oh, Aunt Madge, I do beg your pardon. I completely forgot you were here! That is awful."

"It isn't awful at all," I said, trying to put reassurance and understanding into my voice and smile. "I couldn't get away without disturbing you so I did the next best thing. I concentrated so intently on a problem of my own that what you said had no meaning for me."

Madge's Lie Worth While

It was worth the lie I told my self, to see Noel's relief. "There was only one way to solve mine when I knew the truth," Noel said. "Aunt Madge, do you know that Mary is terribly fatigued and run down? She actually needs this rest that your father wished her to take?"

"I agree with you," I said, and Aunt Katharine just has confirmed what was only surmise on my part. She says she has not liked Mary's lack of color for some time."

"Just put this down in your note book, darling," she said. "There's nothing the matter with me that a good rest won't cure. So go ahead Auntie Madge. Give us the set-up."

"I'm afraid I haven't time now," I said, looking at my wrist watch. "That will have to be staged tomorrow morning, as early as possible."

through West. If West had come in with the A, the rest of the hand would have been easy, but he did not do so at either table. He ducked. In each case the cunning then won with the K and led back the 3. East, who had played the 9 the first time, now put on the 10 in each case and the fate of the hand depended on what South did next.

One declarer covered the 10 with the Q and the A told it. A third heart removed South's A and he had to lead clubs again as there was no other way to score nine tricks. East won with the J and switched to a diamond so that the A and then two more hearts set South two tricks. The other declarer, when he saw East put the 10 on that second club trick, figured out that with West surely marked for the A, the contract could not possibly be made if he also had the K. So he played exactly as if he knew East had that important honor. He put on a small club and sure enough the A had to play South won the returned heart, dropped the club J with the Q and needed simply on his way, scoring four clubs, two hearts and three spades for game.

Your Week-End Lesson. When is it advisable for a declarer to make the defender use one of dummy's three trumps for ruffing a trick, knowing which the defense usually tries to prevent?

"Yes," Mary commented thoughtfully. "Papa Vernon will have to call an attorney to hear me at the final test for Constance Bridgeman. Gee, I'm glad that Constance is going to have the crown she waited for so long! She really has talent."

I looked at her with amazement at her lack of observation and from what Nona Cora had told me, that Constance Bridgeman was an actress of talent but lacked the unusual stock Mary possessed. And Constance, really, was jealous of Mary, lost no opportunity to play on her the mean little tricks one. Trepan can inflict upon another.

Belittled Noel. I knew that as Mary did not, that Constance was one of the women who had belittled Noel and given Stenlen Redfield ammunition for his caustic broadsides against Mary's husband.

"Mary would not have forgiven me," I said, and that, I knew, of course I could not tell Mary what I knew, but my dislike of Mrs. Bridgeman made me say so.

"I don't think having a chance to understand you is going to do the lady any good. When the audacious compare her with you it will be thumbs down for her!" "Mauw mauw," Mary mocked, as I rose to go.

"When you have a spare minute tonight," I said, "suppose you dally with plans for your accident. Aunt Katharine and I will be back after our dinner, and later I'll see you at the after-theater party for Georges. Before we leave the party we ought to have our plans well in hand."

Club Celebrates 14th Anniversary At Dinner-Party

The fourteenth anniversary of the "We" club was celebrated Thursday evening at the annual party in the Stager tea room on Glenview avenue.

A chicken dinner was served to the group at 6:30 p. m. at a long table centered with a bowl of red roses and with favors of miniature dolls dressed in red, white and blue, marking each of the members' places.

A short program followed the dinner and included readings by Mrs. Jane Neff and Mrs. Mary Moser. Mrs. Annie Burger, one of the founders of the club read a brief history of the organization, and the program closed with group singing, led by Mrs. Donna Berg.

Cards were played at three tables, with prizes being won by Mrs. Lillie Markley, Mrs. Esther Moser and Mrs. Anna Case. The next regular meeting of the club will be with Mrs. Louise Long, 499 Lida street, on March 11. Arrangements for the anniversary party were in charge of officers who had served during the past year, Mrs. Markley, Mrs. Esther Moser, Mrs. Neff and Mrs. Mary Moser.

Clean Shades Make Them Last

Now that the War Production board has ordered thumbs down on wire lamp shade frames, shades made of silk and other fabrics have joined the list of household irreplaceables. Unshaded lights are not an immediate prospect, however. With proper care, fabric shades that are now in good condition can be made to last for many more years.

All lamp shades should be frequently dusted with a soft clean brush or a vacuum cleaner attachment, but fabric shades sometimes need more than brushing to remove ingrained dirt.

The most practical way to banish harmful dirt is by soap and water washing. Metallic ribbons and braids, or other trimmings that may not be washable, should be removed. The shade should then be dusted up and down in a tub of lukewarm soapsuds until the colors brighten and the dirt floats out. A soft brush may be used if the soil is stubborn. Rinse in several clear waters of a lukewarm temperature.

Speed in washing and drying will reduce color loss in fabric shades that are colorfast. Drying can be hastened by placing the shade in a current of air from the window or an electric fan. Blotting with a soft cloth will also shorten the drying period.

If the trimmings are soiled and cannot be washed separately, make new ones, or leave the shade untrimmed. Don't spoil the effect by sewing soiled braid or fringe on a freshly washed shade.

In addition to their use for small roasts, porcelain enameled pans are helpful as receptacles for washing vegetables, cut flowers for jelly glasses or jars while they are being filled, and for many other needs.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Feb. 28.

Sunday's horoscope is a fairly favorable one, with practical plans under moderate impetus for progress and desired fulfillment. This may draw on skill, attention to details, wise use of financial and intellectual resources.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a moderately active and progressive year in which clever, shrewd and violent tactics may promote desired ends and thwart certain sinister, cunning or scheming entanglements. Well-organized strategies, sound plans and careful changes should prevail.

A child born on this day should be clever, witty, resourceful and enterprising, but possibly may be easily duped or imposed upon.

For Monday, March 1.

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather difficult one to analyze because of the conflicting aspects affecting the personal relations with public situations of those in authority. There are portents of defeat and duplicity, yet an opportunity for outstanding performance by taking advantage of unusual or radical situations.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year of conflict. Some expanding of finances, others certain openings for exceptional public service and increased popularity but with dangers and defeats from treachery, duplicity and subtle undercurrents.

A child born on this day should have much ability with versatility and shrewdness in business.

Use Right Utensil For Your Specific Tasks In Kitchen

In making selections of porcelain enameled utensils for specific cooking tasks, it is well to keep in mind the specialized uses of each utensil. This is an aid to kitchen efficiency by helping to prevent waste and insuring cooking satisfaction.

Among the specialized uses of the most commonly used porcelain enameled utensils are:

SAUCE PANS — Sauces, small vegetables, fruits, syrups, warming leftovers.

SAUCE POTS — Larger vegetables, fruits, soups, stews, pot roasts, jams and jellies.

KETTLES — Soups, pot roasts, foods in large quantities.

BAKE PANS — This includes deep pie pans, pudding pans, etc. Pies, bread (double or triple loaves), oven canning. Also may be used as auxiliary storage pans for bread, cakes, cookies, other packaged goods.

FRYING PANS — Vegetables, bacon, eggs, fish.

DEEP-FAT FRYING PAN — Vegetables, fritters, fruits, noodles, doughnuts, fowl, meats, fish.

BOILERS AND DOUBLE BOILERS — Ham, fish, asparagus, cereals, cream sauces, melting chocolate, keeping foods warm, warming left-overs.

ROASTERS — Meats, fowl, fish.

CANNERS — Canning vegetables, fruits. Can also be used as stock pots.

Accessory Items Necessary.

In addition, certain accessory items in porcelain enameled ware usually are necessary. These include such utensils as refrigerator dishes for food storage, teakettles, mixing bowls, dishpans, tea and coffee pots, ladles, basting spoons, slotted spoons, sink strainers, colanders and such others as individual needs dictate. Food not only may be stored in enameled refrigerator dishes with perfect safety, but also may be reheated again in the same dish. This saves extra work in the kitchen. Tea and coffee producers recommend enameled tea or coffee makers.

THEATERS

Colman-Carson.

Greer Garson and Ronald Colman co-star in M.G.M.'s "Random Harvest," which opens at the midnight show at the Ohio tonight. Colman, a victim of amnesia because of world war battles, walks away from a mental hospital. He meets Miss Garson, and the two fall in love. They marry and a child is born to them. Colman is struck by a car on a Liverpool street, and when he regains consciousness, he is Charles Rainer, member of a wealthy English family. His three years with Miss Garson are completely blacked out.

Lucky Jordan.

"Tough guy" Alan Ladd stars in "Lucky Jordan," top hit at the Madison today. Ladd, a big shot racketeer is inducted into the army. He soon becomes tired of army life and goes A. W. O. L. The tough guy is on the "right side" in this film, capturing a group of Nazi spies. "The Great Gildersleeve," starring Harold Peary and all the rest of the stars from the popular Sunday night radio program, is the second film.

Major and Minor.

The sparkling comedy, "The Major and the Minor," starring Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland opens today at the Ritz. Complications arise when Ginger assumes the minor role in order to buy a half-fare train ticket to her home from New York. She meets Milland on the train, and the kindly major offers to help the "widow" reach her home. The Andrews sisters star in the other hit, "Give Out Sisters."

Western Thriller.

Roy Rogers, the singing cowboy, stars in "The Heart of the Golden West," now showing at the Park. Those popular favorites, George Haynes and Smiley Burnette, are also featured. Walt Disney's "Fantasia," is the other attraction.

Air Force Story.

Robert Taylor plays the lead in "Flight Command," story of the Navy Air Force now showing at the Majestic. "On the Great White Trail" completes the bill.

Loudonville

Mrs. Carl Bowman entertained a group of friends at her home Wednesday evening for an evening of bridge. Three tables were in play with high scores won by Mrs. Martha Greitzinger and Miss Leonard Welch. After the games delicious refreshments were served at the small tables.

TAKE A GOOD LOOK

"ONE PEEK beats two fancies" is an old joke dating from the earliest days of whist. On plenty of occasions, a mere glance at an opponent's hand would solve your every problem. Of course, they aren't obliging enough to give you a look, and you wouldn't look anyway if they did. But you can get the effect sometimes by taking a very good look "in your mind's eye." When your contract is beaten unless a certain card is in a certain location, merely imagine that you have actually seen it there, and govern yourself accordingly.

In addition, certain accessory items in porcelain enameled ware are usually necessary. These include such utensils as refrigerator dishes for food storage, teakettles, mixing bowls, dishpans, tea and coffee pots, ladles, basting spoons, slotted spoons, sink drainers, colanders and such others as individual needs dictate. Food not only may be stored in enameled refrigerator dishes with perfect safety, but also may be reheated again in the same dish. This saves extra work in the kitchen. Tea and coffee producers recommend enameled tea or coffee makers.

THEATERS

Colman-Carson.

Greer Garson and Ronald Colman co-star in M.G.M.'s "Random Harvest," which opens at the mid-night show at the Ohio tonight. Colman, a victim of amnesia because of world war battles, walks away from a mental hospital. He meets Miss Garson, and the two fall in love. They marry and a child is born to them. Colman is struck by a car on a Liverpool street, and when he awakens consciousness, he is Charles Rainer, member of a wealthy English family. His three years with Miss Garson are completely blacked out.

Lucky Jordan.

"Tough guy" Alan Ladd stars in "Lucky Jordan," top hit at the Madison today. Ladd, a big shot racketeer is indicted into the army. He soon becomes tired of army life and goes A. W. O. L. The tough guy is on the "right side" in this film, capturing a group of Nazi spies. "The Great Gildersleeve," starring Harold Peary and all the rest of the stars from the popular Sunday night radio program, is the second film.

Major and Minor.

The sparkling comedy, "The Major and the Minor," starring Ginger Rogers and Ray Milland opens today at the Ritz. Complications arise when Ginger assumes the minor role in order to buy a half-fare train ticket to her home from New York. She meets Milland on the train, and the kindly major offers to help the "city" reach her home. The Andrews sisters star in the other hit, "Give Out Sisters."

Western Thriller.

Roy Rogers, the singing cowboy, stars in "The Heart of the Golden West," now showing at the Park. Those popular favorites, George Hayes and Souley Burmette, are also featured. Walt Disney's "Fantasia," is the other attraction.

Air Force Story.

Robert Taylor plays the lead in "Flight Command," story of the Navy Air Force, now showing at the Majestic. "On the Great White Trail" completes the bill.

Loudonville

Mrs. Carl Bowman entertained a group of friends at her home Wednesday evening for an evening of bridge. Three tables were in play with high scores won by Mrs. Martha Greizinger and Miss Leona Welch. After the games delicious refreshments were served at the small tables.

MRS. WHISLER HONORS MISS HORTENSE PERL

Associate Hostesses at Miscellaneous Shower Include Mrs. Clem Wehinger, Mrs. Charles Eaton and Miss Elverda Hartnett.

ANOTHER in the series of parties honoring Miss Hortense Perl, bride-elect of Joseph Drilling of Shelby, was given Friday night, in the home of Mrs. Charles Whisler, 235 South Mulberry street, in the form of a miscellaneous shower.

Assisting Mrs. Whisler was Miss Elverda Hartnett, Mrs. Clem Wehinger and Mrs. Charles F. Eaton.

Four tables of bridge were in play during the evening. Score prizes were won by Miss Grace Crotty, Mrs. J. B. Woerth, Mrs. Joseph Reiffenberg and Mrs. John Newcomer.

Late in the evening, a two-course luncheon was served at small tables centered with candles entwined with sweet peas in pastel shades.

After the luncheon, guests were invited to the dining room, where a shower of miscellaneous gifts were arranged on the table, which was decorated with a miniature bridal procession, under an arch of fern, banked with sweet peas. Lighted tapers in tiny candelabra completed the setting.

The hostesses presented Miss Perl with a lace dinner cloth.

The next party which is scheduled for the bride-elect will be given Monday night in the home of Mrs. Frank Loykovich, Lexington avenue. Mrs. J. B. Woerth, Mrs. F. Feigenbaum and Mrs. Peter Lump, Jr. will be associate hostesses.

MISS DORIS BOYCE Feted at Shower

Miss Doris Boyce was honored Wednesday night when the Misses Corinne, Jeannette and Marianne Kuhn entertained with a bath-room shower at their home, near Shelby.

Bridge was played at three tables, and prizes were awarded to Mrs. Richard Jackson and Miss Martha Bricker. These were presented to the honoree.

Luncheon was served at a late hour, by the hostesses, at a long table attractively decorated with yellow and white appointments. The Misses Kuhn presented Miss Boyce with a gift of linen.

ESTHER BIBLE CLUB.

The Esther Bible club met at the home of Mrs. G. H. Cruik, 14 South Adams, Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. J. T. Locke and Mrs. L. R. Snyder as guests. Mrs. Edward Rein was welcomed into the club. Devotions were led by Mrs. W. C. Cates. The lesson study in the second chapter of Luke, read by Mrs. Charles Shupple. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Cates, 355 North Townsend circle, March 11.

Canton Bulldogs Edge Tygers 56-52 In Cage Thriller

By REX HESS

It's not too surprising if field and Ashland high school hoopers tangle for the first time this season two weeks from tonight, this time the district tournament championship at Bellevue. The road to the tournament doesn't appear too long for either the A's or the Tygers. In fact, from this range viewpoint, the big obstacle in their path appears to be that old bugaboo, confidence.

Whiz Kids Pin Hopes On Phillip

Smiley's Defensive Skill Also Counted On.

By TOMMY DEVINE

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—The University of Illinois relies on a pair of basketball specialists, Andy Phillip and Jack Smiley, to bring it a victory over Northwestern and its second straight Big Ten basketball championship tonight at the Chicago stadium.

Phillip represents Illinois' big offensive punch and Smiley is the defensive genius of Coach Doug Mills' great quintet. The pair has proved too much for conference opponents to handle in 10 previous games this season.

Phillip and Smiley were the "guinea pigs" of an experiment Mills made at the outset of the season.

Phillip played guard and Smiley was a regular forward on Illinois' championship team last season. Phillip showed great offensive ability and finished sixth among conference scorers with 159 points in 15 games. Smiley demonstrated greater ability as a defensive performer than as a scorer.

With the record of their sophomore season as a guide, Mills had Phillip and Smiley switch positions at the outset of the current campaign.

Phillip has developed into one of the greatest point makers in Big Ten history. The Illinois ace has 198 points in 10 games and is gunning for the all-time mark of 242 points set a season ago by Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin in 15 games.

In an era when little attention is devoted to defensive play, Smiley has proved that effective guarding isn't a lost art. A week ago he turned in his greatest performance when he held Kotz scoreless for the first time in the Badger forward's career.

Phillip and Smiley are the principal reasons Illinois rates as the favorite over Northwestern. The Wildcats have in Otto Graham a point-maker who rates third in the individual scoring race, but they can offer no one comparable to Smiley.

Smiley will draw the assignment of covering Graham and the odds are the Northwestern star will not approach the 19 point total he compiled against Illinois earlier in the season.

A victory for Illinois will climax the first unbeaten conference season for a Big Ten team since 1919. The Illinois have Chicago to meet Monday, but that's an automatic triumph by whatever margin the Champaign eagles care to make it.

Star Milers Battle Again

Dodds, Mitchell and Dixon Decide Title.

By JACK MAHON

NEW YORK—(INS)—The wildest scramble for the nebulous title of America's outstanding mile foot-racer, in recent years, should reach a climax tonight when Gil Dodds, Frank Dixon, and Earl Mitchell come together in the National A. U. championships before a near sell-out crowd at Madison Square Garden.

Each of these lads has one mile victory to his credit in this year's campaign. Mitchell won the Milrose mile; Dixon captured the event at the Boston A. A. games and last week, Dodds won the Baxter mile of the N. Y. A. C. carnival.

This trio will be shooting for the meet record of 4:08.7 set by Dodds in winning the event last year. It is ridiculous to try and speculate on the possibility of a new record. This is the type of a race in which a new record might easily be set; or it could prove one of the slowest in the history of the games. Because of the variety of styles utilized in the running up to this point there is no telling what type of race it might be.

Dodds won last week's race with a blistering 59.7 second quarter which left his opponents bewildered. Whether he will elect to run a similar race tonight or let something else establish his pace is something Mitchell and Dixon would like to know.

Some six records will fall if the crystal ball of Dan Ferris, national secretary of the A. A. U. is in working order. Dan thinks marks in the mile, pole vault, high and high hurdles, 60-yard dash and three-mile run will be erased.

Cornie Warnerman is a cinch to break the meet mark in the vault. It belongs to Earl Meadows and stands at 14 feet 4 1/2 inches. Warnerman is a cinch to top that while the presence of P. Barney Ewell and Eddie Conwell in the dash seems to indicate the record of 6.2 seconds is in jeopardy.

Aviation Cadet Whitey Hlad, Bob Wright, National Outdoor hurdles champ; Warren Halliburton of N. Y. U., and Harold Sticker, ex-Pitt champ, are the guys who will menace the hurdle marks.

In the three-mile run, Greg (Old Man River) Rice, winner of 59 straight, is confident of establishing a new mark. If he sets a new world mark, it will be his third straight in this department.

Should all go, the big event should gross $28,250, with the winner's share figuring $18,825. For any scoring deduct $250.

To meet the stars of the east: Valdina Orphan, (126 pounds), third in 1942 Kentucky Derby. Won $59,545 last year.

Supporting cast: Marriage (115): Ex-player, beat Alsab last year; Signator (112): Six furlong tract record holder; Bright Galant (111): Hirsch Jacobs developed him into distance star last season; Corydon (110): Unrelatable in this company; Moscow 2nd (108): Too much improvement needed here.

Glad to be back? . . . He kisses American soil.

Once the toast of the boxing world, Corp. Barney Ross, of the U. S. Marines, returns to the United States after going through his "toughest fight" on Guadalcanal. Ross, 32, is credited with killing 22 Japs during an engagement last Nov. 19. Ross is shown at San Diego, Cal., upon his return aboard a big hospital ship. He has been suffering from malaria and spent some time in a field hospital in the southwest Pacific. Among interesting bits of information Ross gave interviewers was his bout with a South sea island champion, who weighed 215 pounds. Ross had a tough time with him but finally kayoed him. Following his defeat of the native boxer, the island king offered Ross his choice of a bride from among his daughters. Ross, naturally, made a polite refusal.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK—(AP)—Thoughts while listening: Branch (two words for the price of one) Rickey is a well-named guy. . . . You ought to hear how he can branch off on another subject after starting to answer a question. . . . And if it takes as long to rebuild the Dodgers as to renovate their downtown offices, then Bums won't be in the pennant race this year. . . . What with Dolf Camilli's and Arky Vaughan's ranches, the farm that Rufus Melton bought (but can't tell where it's located) the Dodgers are having more farm troubles now than when they were operating a dozen minor league clubs.

ENCORE

During the border conference basketball tournament, the West

Texas Buffaloes were having some tough going against Arizona State of Flagstaff. . . . Then Capt. Norman Trimble brought the ball down the floor, yeloped "23" and passed to Chat Johnson, who pitched the ball through the basket without even touching the rim. . . . One fan watching intently, turned to his neighbor and remarked: "There's nothing difficult about that play; they ought to run it again."

Classy Field Goes In Race

Valdina Orphan Heads All-Star Track Cast.

By FRED HAYDEN

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—The classiest field ever to step on the 68-year-old fair grounds racetrack has been assembled for today's $25,000 added, mile and a sixteenth New Orleans handicap.

After weeks of preparation, 11 of the 20 horses nominated were entered overnight for this richest race of a war-time winter program.

Should all go, the big event should gross $28,250, with the winner's share figuring $18,825. For any scoring deduct $250.

Superior Height Wins For M'Kinley Quintet

Parks Gets 19 Points For Victors While Hahn, Baker Each Hoop 17.

By REX HESS, News-Journal Sport Editor.

MANSFIELD HIGH TYGERS gave fans the thrill of the season last night at the high school gym, but couldn't quite overcome the advantage in size held by Canton McKinley's Bulldogs and dropped a close 52-56 decision for their seventh defeat of the cage campaign against 12 wins.

There was nothing wrong with the Tygers that a few inches in height couldn't cure, or that a wee bit of luck on shots that rolled off the hoops wouldn't have helped.

And when all is said and done, there was nothing so remarkable about the great Bulldogs of Canton McKinley that the loss of rubber-legged Ernie Parks wouldn't have ruined. But Parks, with three personal fouls against him at the half, refused to commit that fourth misplay, and continued to control rebounds under both baskets in the second half even as he had in the first.

Parks outscored Mansfield's bucket twins, Bob Baker and Dean Hahn by only two points, settling 19 against 17 each for the two Tygers, but the ease with which he got his points, and the timing of his scoring efforts gave Canton an ace in the hole that turned back every Mansfield threat once the Bulldogs took the lead.

Canton didn't get into the lead until two minutes and thirty seconds of the second quarter had elapsed. Mansfield piling up a 7-2 margin midway in the first period and making the Bulldogs battle to gain a 9-9 tie at the quarter.

The Bulldogs were handicapped by the loss of Vic Wernet, veteran guard, who discovered yesterday noon that he had the measles, just an hour before his teammates started the trip to Mansfield. Then Earl Loucks fouled out with a minute and 48 seconds of the second quarter left to play, and with Zimmer and Kosmides taking the place of the Bulldog regulars, the McKinley teamwork didn't have a thing on the Tygers.

Haverstock got the first bucket of the ball game, a long shot from the side, but that was only the signal for the Tygers to go into action, and they swept into a 7-2 lead before the dazed Bulldogs could figure it out. Baker missed a free shot, but Lamoreaux tipped in a follow shot, and Doug Myers got a sucker shot on a perfect block play. Baker added a free point. Zimmer missed a pair of free shots. Hahn connected on a one-hander from the corner and it was 7-2. Kosmides replaced Zimmer. Loucks got a free point. Haverstock sank a one-hander from the side. Baker connected from the circle. Cook hooped a long leave, and just before the quarter hour Parks got a follow shot to tie it up at 9-9.

The Tygers failed to get a bucket in the second quarter as McKinley outscored them 15-6 for a 24-15 margin at the half. Baker got four free points in the period, and Hahn two for the Mansfield total, while Parks paced the Bulldog scoring with four follow shots. It looked like the Bulldogs were deliberately missing free tosses so he could bat 'em in for two points instead of one.

Then the Tygers got on the ball in the third period, outscoring the visitors 19-12 and closing the gap at 34-36. Baker dribbled in for a bucket, and Haverstock got a follow shot. Hahn caged a free toss and Baker dribbled in for another bucket to make it 20-26. Haverstock scored from mid-floor and Parks under the hoop. Parks missed a free shot but Cook followed it up for two points, and it was 32-20 for McKinley.

Doug Myers got a follow-up. Lamoreaux hooped a one-hander from the side. Baker twice made good on double free shots and it was 28-31. Haverstock got a follow shot and Lamoreaux scored on a pivot. Zimmer sank a pair of free shots and it was 36-30. Hahn canned a one-hander from the side and Les Myers hooped a follow shot to make it 34-36 at the third period.

The last period was free-wagon basketball with the two teams trading bucket for bucket. Tygers McKinley took a 6-point margin, but usually the difference ranged from two to four points with the Bulldogs leading.

Haverstock and Les Myers traded buckets. Haverstock scored again under the hoop and Cook from the side to make it 42-36. Hahn connected on a one-hander from the corner and added a pair of free points and it was 42-40. Zimmer faltered under the hoop and so did Parks and it was 46-40. Baker got a pair of free points to make it 46-42.

Parks got a follow shot and Hahn a one-hander from the corner. Kosmides, who shot nearly every time he got hold of the ball, finally connected from the side and it was 50-44. Doug Myers scored under the bucket and Lamoreaux on a follow up and it was 50-48 with two minutes and 30 seconds to go.

Canton took time out and decided to stall. In order to break up the fall, Mansfield deliberately fouled and Cook missed a free toss and let Parks follow it up for two points. Zimmer also got a follow, and it was 54-48.

Hahn scored from the side and Kosmides got a free point on a double foul. Hahn missing his free shot. It was 55-50 with only 20 seconds left. Cook got a free point, Hahn hooped a sucker shot, and Cook missed a free throw. McKinley 53, Mansfield 52.

In the preliminary game Mansfield Reserves scored a 36-19 win over the vocational department, leading 9-6 at the quarter, 16-12 at the half and 22-17 at the third quarter. They outscored the shop boys 14-1 in the final period.

Mike Zirkoff led the Reserves with 11 points and Louis Nameth tallied 10 for the shop.

But the Bulldogs had Parks, and that was almost enough. They also had the great Dale Haverstock who connected for 15 points, running his season total to 242, a new all-time season's record for Canton McKinley players.

Haverstock wasn't sensational last night, however, not nearly as sensational as little Bobby Baker and Dean Hahn. In fact Captain Bill Cook was more conspicuous for his play than the Bulldog leading scorer.

Only the fact that the lid was on, but tight, for the Tygers in the second period, they might have had a victory today instead of that four-point defeat. They didn't score a single bucket in that quarter, although Andy Lamoreaux alone must have had half a dozen roll off the ring that would have taken very little luck to roll in.

Zippers Boost Win Mark to 15 Games

(By Associated Press)

Akron boosted its season's basketball record to 15 victories against three defeats by trouncing Wayne, 55 to 39, at Detroit, Mich., last night, but the Zippers remained in third place behind Toledo and Capital in the statewide standings.

The only other Buckeye teams in action were Baldwin-Wallace and Heidelberg of the Ohio conference, with the Yellow Jackets downing the Student Princes, 32 to 28, at Berea. The victory gave the Yellow Jackets a record of 10 wins in 17 starts, and seven league triumphs against two losses.

"Woods and Waters"

The state of Ohio has 13,000 prehistoric mounds, of a now vanished people. The skill and evident understanding of modern recognized engineering principles in the construction of some of the larger ones, has mystified many scientists.

Two families of insect eating birds on every acre of a 180 acre farm would devour as many as 40 million insects in a cropping season, say Federal authorities.

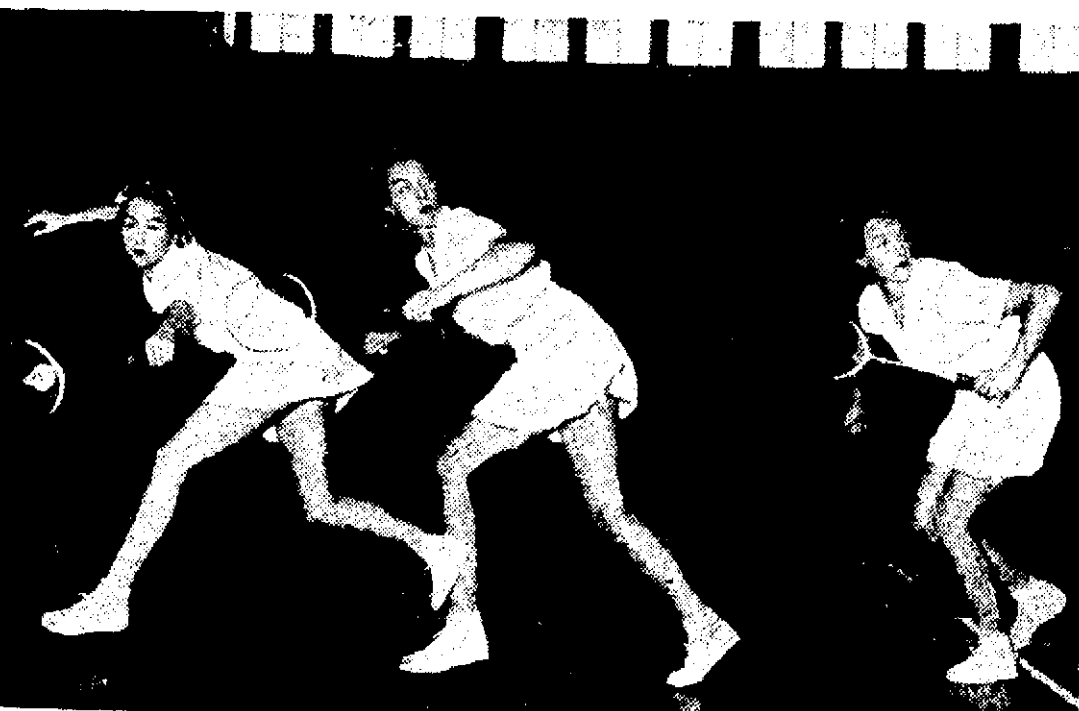

The female black widow spider is said to be the most poisonous creature on earth, on the basis of its size. Even the tiny eggs are poisonous to handle, if one's skin is broken, according to experts.

Recreation is essential to every one these tense, busy days. And if the favorite outdoor sports cannot yet be enjoyed, you can tone tired muscles and soothe jangled nerves with indoor games like ping pong or darts. Yunker's can supply you with the needed equipment at small cost, to provide many enjoyable hours, at home.

The striking differences in the number and position of the fins in various fishes have a meaning that has not as yet been discovered and explained.

The water buffalo and cattle heron in the Celebes are close friends. The birds perch on the backs of these powerful beasts, walking back and forth, while the buffalo grazes, eating the ticks that prey on these animals.

This Gal Gets Around---Now Doesn't She?

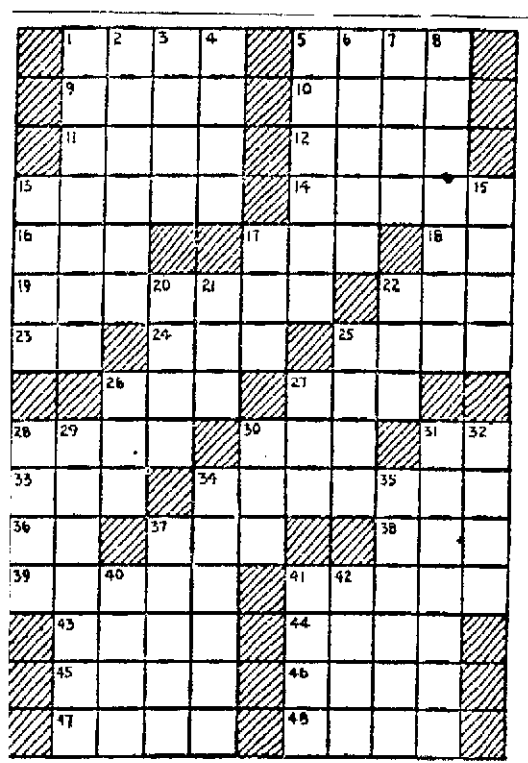

WE COULD START THIS ITEM OUT by an alliterative allusion, to wit: BAY BEAUTY BELTS BADMINTON BIRD—but we won't. The gal is Thelma Kingsbury Seavill, reading from left to right. Thelma, you may know if you're a badminton fan, was the national champion in 1942. She is shown in a triple exposure by the Speedray camera while working out in San Francisco.
